

Too many witnesses dead to pursue CIA murder plots

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller said Sunday his commission failed to develop conclusive evidence on alleged foreign CIA assassination plots because many implicated people — including President John F. Kennedy — are no longer alive.

Rockefeller said all major CIA activities had White House approval, and hinted the CIA investigating commission may have obtained some information that President Kennedy and his brother, former Attorney General Robert Kennedy, were involved in alleged plots.

But he emphasized that none of the secret information was strong enough to support solid conclusions of guilt. And he denied that it was withheld from the public for political reasons.

Rockefeller's remarks quickly drew a strong rebuke from two former aides of Robert Kennedy, who accused the vice president of ignoring the conclusions of his own report or "deliberately lying."

President Ford last week released results of the Rockefeller commission's five-month investigation of illegal domestic intelligence activity by the CIA.

But the commission failed to complete a separate probe of the alleged assassination plots and instead sent their information to the Justice Department and a special Senate committee for more investigation.

Rockefeller said in a broadcast interview (NBC-TV's Meet the Press) that the commission failed to complete the assassination investigation because it ran out of time and encountered too many difficulties.

"Let's face it," he said, "many of the people have died who were allegedly involved and others were assassinated in this country tragically."

Asked if he was referring to the Kennedys, Rockefeller replied: "Well, as I said, we have no conclusive information, but the President of the United States and the attorney general of the United States were both assassinated tragically in this country."

He then was asked if he meant the Kennedys actually were involved in such plots.

"Well," he said, "I said we had no evidence on the basis of which to draw conclusions. I said it was very difficult to get information because we go back 15 years and many of the people who were involved in the CIA and in the White House are no longer living."

"I think it's fair to say that no major undertaking by CIA was done without the knowledge and or approval of the White House."

In another televised interview, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., agreed and said the CIA would not have tried to kill anyone without approval from the President.

"I am as convinced as I am sitting here that the action would never have taken place without the President knowing about it," Goldwater told an interviewer on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers."

"... Before anything could happen, the President would have to have knowledge and in fact would have to, in effect, give permission."

But Goldwater, a member of the Senate Select Intelligence Committee, said he had seen no evidence that any CIA assassination scheme had gone beyond the plotting stage where the President may not have known about it.

Israel, Egypt fully clarify Mideast peace positions

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Sunday the positions of Israel and Egypt on an interim Middle East agreement have now been fully clarified beyond any possible misunderstanding.

Kissinger, who met with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, would not go into details but said that during the next few weeks "we will be working in diplomatic channels with all of the parties to see whether it is possible to translate these ideas into concrete progress."

He said he did not expect to resume his shuttle diplomacy efforts, which collapsed last March, in the "next immediate weeks."

Summing up the results of five days of talks Rabin had with President Ford, Kissinger and other U.S. officials, Kissinger said after his 90-minute meeting with the Israeli premier Sunday:

"We have had very detailed and constructive talks. We have now fully clarified all the positions and all the nuances of the positions beyond any possible misunderstanding."

Rabin, in a television interview on CBS' "Face the Nation," Sunday repeated that if Israel was willing to make concessions, Egypt would have to do likewise to provide the basis for a new interim agreement.

"Unless both sides are forthcoming" an interim agreement with Egypt will not be possible, Rabin said "One has to be hopeful that it (an agreement) can be reached, but we'll see in the coming weeks," he added.

Kissinger agreed that concessions were necessary.

"Both parties have to be prepared to modify their positions as compared to March if progress is to be made and I have also said that progress is not precluded so you can draw your own conclusions," the secretary told reporters.

Involves about $38 million

HEW freezes consulting contracts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Health, Education and Welfare Department has caught itself spending faster than the law allows and quietly froze about $38 million in private consulting contracts, HEW disclosed Sunday.

In consequence, some consulting firms are protesting they may be cheated of contracts for which they made costly bid preparations at the department's request.

Deputy comptroller Charles Miller said HEW blew the whistle on its own spending because it was fast approaching the legal limit set by Congress for annual expenditures on private surveys, advice and information.

In the past, such firms as the Rand Corporation and IBM have won fat contracts to conduct the surveys and studies that underpin HEW's various projects.

Private firms have done HEW research on such subjects as cancer, family planning, nursing homes, child abuse and racial and ethnic bias in New York City schools.

Miller said HEW decided to freeze about $38 million in contract funds when it discovered on June 5 that the department had already spent an estimated $42 million on consulting contracts this year.

Congress limited HEW's annual spending for such contracts to about $60 million when it wrote the 1974-75 HEW appropriation bill.

Contract bidders reacted quickly and angrily to the freeze, flooding HEW and Congressmen with complaints that they may have wasted money on contract bidding preparations undertaken at HEW's request.

In an interview, Miller said HEW is trying to develop "equitable means" for letting out at least some of the contracts before the fiscal year ends on June 30.

"It is reasonably clear, however, that we will not be able to award all of the contracts which agencies had previously hoped to award," he said in a written statement on the freeze.

At current estimates, he said, some $26 million worth of work will be delayed.

Postponed work will be carried over for consideration in fiscal 1976, which begins July 1.

Pele makes U.S. soccer debut

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pele, showing glimpses of the form which made him the world's greatest soccer player of the 1960s, scored the tying goal and assisted on the first score Sunday in his debut for the New York Cosmos, who came from behind to tie the Dallas Tornado, 2-2, in a nationally and internationally televised game.

A crowd of 21,278 was in Downing Stadium on Randall's Island to see the game, which was carried live to nine countries in Latin America and Japan on a hot, humid afternoon. The Cosmos have averaged just over 7,000 during their regular season games so far.

After a quiet beginning, Pele, for whom the Cosmos paid a record $4.7 million for a three-year contract, began to exhibit the form which made him an international star.

The horde of news photographers were treated to his victory salute—a right arm extended in the air in the 65th minute when he scored with a header following a corner kick taken by Israeli international Mordecai Shpiliger.

Monroe man killed in crash

MOUNT POCONO — One man was killed and two others were hospitalized Saturday morning following a one-car crash six miles north of here on Route 196.

Richard Moyer Sr., 24, Tobyhanna, was pronounced dead at the scene by county coroner Daniel Warner, who said death was caused by a broken neck and multiple internal injuries.

John Kavelines, 21, 667 Belmont Ave., Mount Pocono, and Charles Lewis, 22, Pocono Pines, were in satisfactory condition Sunday at the General Hospital of Monroe County with lacerations and contusions.

State police at Swiftwater said Moyer and Lewis were passengers in Kavelines' sportscar convertible which was traveling south on Rte. 196 at 5:30 a.m. Saturday.

Kavelines reportedly attempted to round a right curve at an excessive rate of speed when the car left the road on the west berm and struck an embankment.

The car rolled over upon impact, throwing out the three occupants. Police said it stopped in a northwest direction against the embankment and partly on the road.

Kavelines and Lewis were taken to the hospital by the Coolbaugh Township ambulance.

The investigation is continuing. The investigating officer was Trooper Thomas Mastruzzo.

$2 million fire hits airport

The victims, both members of the 19-man airport fire department, were identified as Donald T. Phillips, 28, Erlanger, Ky., and Thomas G. Zafertes, 28, Cincinnati. Boone County Coroner Donald Stith said the men's deaths were apparently caused by asphyxiation. Autopsies were ordered.

The 8 a.m. blaze, reported by forecasters in a National Weather Service office, was fought by firemen from six cities and burned out of control for nearly two hours. The Greater Cincinnati airport is located in Kentucky, some 10 miles across the Ohio River from the city of Cincinnati.

The blaze, officials said, apparently started in air conditioning machinery in the airport's community relations department adjacent to the weather office.

Passengers and airport personnel were quickly evacuated from the two-story brick structure after the first alarm.

"Don and Tom were the first two firemen to go into the building," Bill Jones, a member of the airport fire department said. "They went upstairs to where it was burning."

"They both had on air packs and were taking oxygen from them," he said. "I handed them

STROUDSBURG — History

takes on a new dimension when it's a living thing and information about what happened to the Sarah Stroud Hollinshead home on Dreher Avenue after it was sold by her children principally comes from the liveliest, prettiest textbook imaginable, Mrs. Evan Kintz.

As Bertha Kautz, she was born 83 years ago in the stone house, now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Patterson Jr. She was married in its front parlor. Her memories of what life was like on what was known for almost 100 years as the Kautz farm are as lively as she is.

It was in 1856 that her grandfather, Henry Kautz, bought the property, just three years after the death of Sarah Stroud Hollinshead. Henry had come to America at the age of six with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Kautz, from the Bavarian section of Germany, and settled in the Shawnee area.

His childhood memories of Bavaria were so golden that he stated often and publicly that in Bavaria people built better barns for their animals than the houses Pennsylvanians built for people.

2.5 tons of pot seized

MIAMI (UPI) — Five persons were arrested early Sunday and 5,000 pounds of marijuana and one pound of cocaine seized following a 36-hour surveillance operation by Coast Guard and U.S. Customs officials.

A customs spokesman said estimated street value for the confiscated drugs was about $1.9 million.

In addition to the marijuana and cocaine, agents also confiscated a 37-foot sportfishing vessel "Award," a 20 by 40-switch, changed to a dialing system as used in the rest of the nation. Some 325 customers here and nearby Gold Hill and Silver City will now dial, instead of picking up the phone and asking their friendly operator to get a number.

When the final phone call was completed Saturday, old-timers in the Sundance Saloon, some with a tear in their eye, toasted the "good old days" with free champagne.

Kate, who worked as an operator on the system in 1906, is sorry to see the handcranked phones eliminated.

"We older people will miss it," she says sorrowfully.

She and other old timers recall that emergency police and fire service was easily summoned by quickly cranking the dial and yelling into the phone for help. The operators were able to tell where the call came from and dispatched aid immediately.

Living history can be fun

Little did he dream that a great-granddaughter, Eleanor Kintz Regan and her husband, John, would be checking up on his words on their visit to Germany. "The barns are big but not better than our houses. In fact they were often attached to the houses," she reports.

Nevertheless, Henry thought enough of the Hollinshead property to buy it. There were about 200 acres included in the deed. Its boundaries stretched through what is now LaBar's Rhododendron Nursery, up over Godfrey's Ridge and down into Cherry Valley.

It crossed Dreher Avenue and included what is now Dogwood Gardens. On the west it adjoined the Coolbaugh place, now the Kovaricks' and on the east the Stroudsburg Cemetery. Specifically excluded in the deed was the Hollinshead family burying ground on Kaber's Hill.

It was next to that burying ground that the Kintz home was built at 1228 Dreher Avenue on Kautz land and on the other side that the interview was conducted at 1224, where Mrs. Kintz now lives with her daughter, Eleanor Regan. The cemetery itself is now so overgrown with poison ivy that it proved off limits.

Henry proved to be not only a good farmer but also a good citizen. In the history of St. John's Lutheran Church in Stroudsburg, he is listed on the 1866 committee appointed to organize a permanent congregation for Lutherans in the area.

Also on the committee were Henry's brother, Valentine, whose livery stable at Monroe and Ninth Streets provided transportation for the Civil War generation of local residents, and Henry's son, John.

Good morning

The only thing that makes a woman happy about putting on an old dress is the fact that she still can.

Some presidents blamed for many CIA excesses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Elder statesman W. Averell Harriman said Sunday Congress and "some presidents" are to blame for many of the excesses of the Central Intelligence Agency.

But Harriman warned against destroying the CIA for its mistakes. And he speculated the Russians must be laughing with pleasure at the current furor over the U.S. intelligence network.

"I'm not defending in any shape or manner the excesses of the CIA," Harriman said in an interview. "But Congress is to blame for not adequately pursuing their oversight. Some Presidents are to blame for asking them to do illegal things. And there were some people in the agency that did things that were not right."

Harriman, 83, an active force in domestic and international affairs since the Roosevelt administration, said the CIA must be preserved because it "in my experience has been more conservative and accurate than the Presidents" in assessing international situations.

"Instead of going back to the drawing boards, I believe we should bring it under control," Harriman said. "What we should do is correct its errors by legislation. I hate to see this thing become a political football. It's a very serious business, this question of the right kind of intelligence."

Apparently comparing the CIA to its Russian counterpart, the KGB, Harriman added: "The Russians have the most ruthless of secret police. They had under Stalin the most horrible system that was trying to wreck democratic efforts all around the world. They probably are laughing at us. They are delighted to see the CIA in trouble, because the CIA was one of the things frustrating their efforts."

Harriman also was sharply critical of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's policy toward the Vietnam war. He said a Democratic administration could have ended it sooner.

"If Hubert Humphrey had been elected President (in 1968), he would have appointed Clark Clifford Secretary of State and Cyrus Vance Secretary of Defense and left me in Paris," he said.

Outlook grim for car firms

DETROIT (UPI) — Wall Street analysts are predicting further red-ink performances for the nation's automakers despite rebounding sales in May and early June.

Chrysler Corp. is expected to report its fourth straight quarterly loss for the April-June quarter. General Motors and the Ford Motor Co. are expected to be in the black, but analysts say Ford could fall as much as $9.5 million in the red in the third quarter.

Financial results for the second quarter won't be released until late July. The January-March quarter was the worst for the "Big Three" since the Depression, with Chrysler reporting a $94.1 million loss and Ford $10.6 million deficit.

"They're trying to respond now to the fact that the American car has to fundamentally change due to government and public pressures for better fuel economy," said David Eisenberg of the New York firm of Sanford Bernstein & Co.

Eisenberg predicted a $314 million profit for GM in the second quarter, compared with $306 million in 1974. Ford will rebound from its first-quarter loss to a $75 million profit and Chrysler's loss will be between $45 million and $47 million, he said.

Both the Ford and Chrysler financial results will reflect the switch to a new accounting method at the beginning of the year which allows for immediate credit for investment.

Elizabeth Kautz proved to be enterprising woman

At Henry's death his sons, John and Phillip carried on the farm. They had never married and seemed quite content to go on living at home. Their mother, Elizabeth Kautz, was more enterprising.

When John was 48 and Phillip was 18 months older, Elizabeth decided that the time had come. She had visited the new neighbors, an English couple of considerable wealth drawn to America by the coal mines in Scranton.

They had built an elaborate home in the vicinity of the present Spring Garden Street, complete with a formal English garden and an English gardener they had brought with them. It was there that Elizabeth Kautz met and heartily approved of a young girl who had come to work for them.

She was Flora Snyder, who had her own brand of enterprise. On the day she reached the age of 21, she had her bags all packed and left her home in the West End to seek her fortune in town; which in this case represented service in the Owens' home.

Recognizing a kindred spirit, Elizabeth Kautz invited Flora Snyder home for dinner, introduced her to her son, John, and her pleasant plot succeeded according to plan.

Although Bertha Kautz Kintz does not remember her grandfather, who died before she was born, she does remember her grandmother as "the little old lady in the rocking chair" which she had so astutely earned.

She also remembers her father, John Kautz, as a well-read man, who subscribed not only to local papers but also to the New York papers, which came three times a week and which he saved for reading on Sunday.

Sunday was not only his day of rest but also when he devoted all of his energy to St. John's Lutheran Church. He was on the committee which built the present church on North Ninth Street in 1868-69. It was into this church that the congregation, which his father helped to found, moved after years of meeting in the county court house.

The Kautz farmhouse at that time presented a far different appearance. The old stones had been covered with the newly-fashionable white stucco, and there were porches at both the front and the back of the house.

Those porches had been built over her father's objections. But if John could spend Sunday reading his newspapers, Flora wanted to spend them sitting on the front porch.

Although "just a wisp of a woman," Flora Kautz was a woman of enterprise. It was just as well. When her husband died, her small daughters, Bertha, was 11 and Eleanor was nine. Flora had the management of the whole farm, especially after her brother-in-law, Phillip, followed his brother in death as well as life shortly after.

"We lived well," Bertha recalls of her childhood. Their herd of cattle provided plenty of meat as well as milk. The kitchen garden provided vegetables. The melon patch was hidden in the middle of the cornfield to prevent boys from stealing the melons.

She even remembers a log cabin on the farm. Because it was considered dangerous, Bertha and Eleanor, were forbidden to go in it. "I wish now we hadn't been so obedient," she regrets. "We never did get to see what the loft was like."

Bertha and Eleanor attended the Stroudsburg school, living just on the line which might have sent them to the Spoke Factory School.

"Of course, we walked," she remembers. "Sometimes when it was raining or snowing hard, mother would suggest that father drive in to get us, but his reply was always that he wanted to spare the horses in such weather."

She also remembers a big flood when McMichaels Creek overflowed, covering what is now the nursery. "I thought it was Noah's Flood," she recalls, "and I still remember we had a boat to see to the cattle."

Of the neighbors, some pretty fancy, and of how a widow managed a 200-acre farm, Bertha Kintz's memories provide material for the next in the series.

Serve children of military men

Costly child care centers blasted

DETROIT (UPI) — The Defense Department pays huge service fees to child care centers in Texas where filth, drugs and brutality are part of the environment, the Detroit News said today in a copyright story.

The News said more than 200 emotionally disturbed children of military personnel are now under treatment at commercial facilities in Texas under a Defense Department program called CHAMPUS — Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services.

In the second part of his series on the Texas commercial child care industry. News reporter Seth Kantor said CHAMPUS pays fees as high as $75 a day per child — plus psychiatric treatment fees — to institutions he said have been compared to "commercial jails."

"Welfare records in Austin," Kantor said, "show that among 17CHAMPUS-supported centers in Texas there have been these problems in recent months: Patient drug misuse; filthy living conditions; large staff turnovers; charges of sexual abuse of residents; staff members using marijuana; and the questionable handling of CHAMPUS funds."

"Some of these Texas centers were approved as CHAMPUS facilities without on-site inspections."

CHAMPUS was established with Congressional approval in the 1950s to give military dependents medical care not available in nearby military hospitals.

It added provisions for psychiatric care in 1967 and, Kantor said, provided an instant windfall for the free-wheeling Texas child care industry.

"In Texas, where licensing regulations were less restrictive than in almost any other state for commercial centers, private operators put together institutions almost overnight, competing for the high fees CHAMPUS would pay," Kantor said.

He said CHAMPUS rules require it to match the highest rate paid by any private client at a given center.

He said CHAMPUS officials at the Pentagon and elsewhere had been unable to say how much money the military project was paying overall for psychiatric care in Texas.

Kantor said Col. Horace A. Corley, health services director of CHAMPUS, expressed a number of reservations in an interview about use of the Texas centers.

President spends quiet day

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Ford took time off on Fathers Day to enjoy a leisurely Sunday with some of his family — sleeping later than usual, eating richly and enjoying swimming and tennis at this mountaintop retreat.

His wife, Betty, treated him to a red plaid swim suit with matching top and had a lemon-flavored cake prepared for the occasion with the inscription "Happy Fathers Day President Ford."

Ford was given the cake shortly after he and the First Lady flew to Camp David, about 65 miles northwest of Washington, early Saturday evening. He planned to return to the White House following a special dinner of "lobster thermidor," according to a spokesman.

He was to start work today with an official visit from West German President Walter Scheel.

With Ford at Camp David, in addition to the First Lady, were his son, Jack, and sister-in-law, Janet Ford of Grand Rapids, Mich. He was expecting greetings of the day from his daughter, Susan, taking a photography course at Yosemite National Park, and his son, Steven, who is in San Diego.

Skyjacker happy to be 'home'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Accused airplane hijacker Michael Lynn Hansen who will appear in court today, is "tickled" to be back in the United States, although he faces possible life imprisonment for a non-scheduled flight that ended in Cuba three long years ago.

Hansen, 24, of Fargo, N.D., was released by Fidel Castro's government Wednesday. He had been detained for more than three years in Cuba following the alleged hijacking of a Western Airlines jet on May 5, 1972, in protest over U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

The 6-foot, 2-inch, blond Hansen was arrested at about 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

He was escorted by a federal marshal and an FBI agent to the Federal House of Detention in Manhattan pending a hearing scheduled for this morning in Brooklyn Federal Court.

The FBI said Hansen will be charged with air piracy which carries a penalty of 20 years to life in prison. A spokesman said the suspect had been indicted on that charge plus a count of draft evasion by a Los Angeles federal grand jury in September 1972.

Bunker Hill battle gets modernized

BOSTON (UPI) — Colonial sharpshooters cut down the British before retreating. But it was tough to visualize the 1775 scene because the 1975 version of the Battle of Bunker Hill was surrounded by the trappings of modern society.

The 200th anniversary recreation of the Revolutionary War battle was staged Saturday with soldiers on both sides dressed in the wardrobe of 1775. But the ice cream vendors, apartment houses and 15,000 onlookers were strictly modern day.

In 1775 the colonials were ordered, "Don't fire until you see the whites of their eyes." But in 1975 that would have been difficult — many of the charging "British" wore sunglasses.

For the convenience of the men who were playing the roles of the American and British soldiers and for the crowd, the re-enactment of the bloody stand, where the disorganized Americans ripped apart two British charges before retreating when they ran out of powder, took place on the weekend — three days before its June 17 anniversary.

The fight, which has become known as the Battle of Bunker Hill, actually took place on the slopes of Breed's Hill, and so was the re-enactment. Then a strategically important high ground, today Breed's Hill is in the middle of the city's heavily residential Charlestown area.

The grassy knoll with the 221 foot-high gray stone obelisk marking the battle site, was cordoned off for the re-enactment.

Guerrillas attack Israelis

YUVAL, Israel (UPI) — Four Arab guerrillas burst into a house in this settlement near the Lebanese border Sunday, shot the occupants and took them hostage. Israeli troops killed the assailants and Israeli warplanes streaked into Lebanon in swift reprisal.

The head of the family, Ya'acov Mordechai, died on the doorstep of his home when he helped soldiers storm his house to get to the guerrillas holding his wife, infant son and relatives inside.

Mordechai's brother-in-law was killed in the initial guerrilla attack and six persons were wounded, including Mordechai's 22-year-old wife, Simha, their 7-month-old son, Asaf, a military spokesman said.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman in Jerusalem said the attack was designed to sabotage current efforts to revive Middle East peace talks.

He said a Palestine Liberation Organization statement taking responsibility for the incident provides "fresh proof that the governments supporting the PLO, viewing it as a partner to dialogue and affording it representation in international organizations, encourage — whether directly or indirectly — murder and violence."

He said the action was aimed "at undermining the diplomatic efforts presently being pursued to revive the political momentum in the Middle East as part of the peace process."

The Israeli military command said the raiders crossed from Lebanon.

What's news

Summer jobs' aid ready

WASHINGTON — The Labor Department said Sunday it is ready to release almost a half billion dollars for 840,400 summer jobs for young people. The legislation for the summer jobs was passed by Congress last week and the White House said Friday President Ford will sign it. The White House rarely indicates ahead of time what action the President will take on a bill and the announcement was considered significant of the importance the administration attaches to this part of its anti-recession program. The jobs program earlier was included in another and broader bill which the President vetoed because he feared an inflationary impact.

German leader visits U.S.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — West German President Walter Scheel arrived in the United States Sunday for the start of a five-day official visit that will include a meeting with President Ford and an address to Congress. Scheel, 55, who was Willy Brandt's foreign minister, was accompanied by Foreign Minister Hans Dietrich Genscher, government officials and members of the German press.

Wagon train popular

ARCHBOLD, Ohio — The second largest crowd to visit the American Freedom train so far in its tour of the nation swarmed into this tiny northwestern Ohio city during the weekend, the smallest community the train will visit. Officials estimated as many as 60,000 persons toured the train's exhibits Saturday and Sunday, with as many as 9,000 persons standing in line for hours at one time to travel a moving walkway through the train. Heavy rains Saturday evening caused at least three dozen vehicles to become stuck in a dirt parking area near the train. Police and private tow trucks were used to free the vehicles.

Drumming his way into history

MCCALL, Idaho — Sean "Uncle Jim" Moore was still at it Sunday — pounding away on his two sets of drums in this lake-front central Idaho town, attempting to break a world record. He was drumming past his 100th straight hour and is attempting to go for 240 hours, hoping to break the old record of 218 hours and 46 minutes, held by a New York man. "I'm doing just fine," he said Sunday from the Cellar Club. "I have a little bit of a sore throat, I kinda sang my lungs out last night."

Soviet rockets head to Venus

MOSCOW — Two Soviet rockets sped through space Sunday toward a late-October rendezvous with Venus in man's first twin probe of his hostile planetary neighbor. The newest Soviet effort to investigate Venus apparently is an attempt not only to increase the amount of information coming back but also to cross-check the data by sending two ships one after the other. Selsakaya Zhizn newspaper said Sunday that "the practice of nearly simultaneous launchings of two interplanetary stations will allow for the provision of more complete data about this hazardous planet and will ensure the true character and reliability of the information."

Kent trial enters fifth week

CLEVELAND — The fifth week of the Kent State civil trial opens today with Barry Morris, a former Ohio National Guardsman who admitted firing into a crowd of students five years ago, on the stand. Morris told Thursday of firing his .45 caliber automatic twice at a knee-high level into a group of 40-50 students rushing towards guardsmen, estimating the nearest was 30 feet from him. He was "scared to death" at the time, he said, having been the target of rocks and bottles and shouts including "kill, kill, kill."

Italians go to the polls

ROME — Italians voted Sunday in regional elections which could give the Communists a wider power base in their demands for a role in the national government. Sunny, warm weather greeted nearly 40 million voters from the top of Italy's boot to its toe on the first of two days of balloting. At stake are 15 of 20 regional and more than 6,000 provincial and municipal councils. Results are expected this evening. The real test in the election centered on what gains the Communists and Socialists could make at the expense of the dominant Christian Democrats, who have ruled Italy alone or in coalition for the past three decades.

West End wanderings

Famous chickens

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

BRODHEADSVILLE — If there's one thing that the average Puerto Rican housewife can't tolerate, it's a white chicken. And what's even worse is an egg in a white shell.

West Enders would have never been privileged to that little piece of trivia if it weren't for the quality and popularity of some of the foul raised by Boyd Smith in Kunkletown.

Puerto Rico is so impressed with the quality of Smith's breeds, that it send David Holt all the way to Monroe County to take pictures of the West Ender's prize-winning barred rocks.

Holt is preparing a book for Puerto Rico for the betterment of poultry and pulled Smith's name out of a national list of breeders. The West Ender is one of only 41 people in the Eastern United States to be included in the special study.

Holt was thrilled with the size and show quality of the barred rocks and was impressed because the breed lays only brown eggs. It was then that he relayed the dislike of Puerto Ricans for white chickens and white eggs.

If there's anybody who is a real expert on back biters in the West End, it's George Fox, county vector control agent. He may not be up on the gossip kind, but he sure knows a real rat when he sees one.

George reportedly got a call from a Snyder'sville resident complaining that rats were eating the backs right out of chickens, while they were roosting in the chicken coop at night.

The native West Ender told George that chickens, once they roost and it is dark, will not move, even if a rat attacks them from the back. George didn't quite believe the claim until he investigated and saw the dead chickens with half their backs gone.

And here's a little word of advice to keep rats away from your country property. Don't pile up excess bird feed outside or put your pet food outside. Both practices attract rats. Rotting garden vegetables might be an enticement, so use what you plant.

If you live in Jackson Township and you know how to quilt, give the Jackson Township Bicentennial Committee a call. It's looking for somebody to supervise the making of one or possibly more quilts that will contain the names of township residents.

The annual Vacation Church School, sponsored by the Lutheran churches in Kresgeville, Hamilton Square and Brodheads ville will be held from 9 a.m. to 12 noon, Monday thru Friday from July 7 to July 18.

The registration fee is $1 per child; forms can be obtained from the churches, or by writing to Claire Xander, Star Route, Brodheads ville, Pa. 18331.

Bus service will be provided to the school. The bus will stop at 8 a.m. at the Kresgeville Lutheran Church, at 8:15 a.m. at the Gilbert Methodist Church, at 8:30 a.m. at the Brodheads ville Lutheran Church and at 8:45 a.m. at the Saylor'sburg Methodist Church. The program will be held at Hamilton Elementary School.

The annual 4th county demonstration and public speaking contest will be held from 12 noon to 8 p.m. June 28, at the Brainerd Center in Snyder'sville. Demonstrations will be given individually or by two-member teams. Topics will include animal science, plant science, clothing and textiles, engineering, foods and nutrition, home and family management, and a general category.

4-H'ers can pre-register for the demonstrations and public speaking contest by sending a post card to the Monroe County Extension office by June 20.

And speaking of the Extension Service, its consumer notes bulletin this month has an interesting section, especially with regards to the dairy farmers in the West End. Cows eat a lot according to the bulletin, and perhaps it is something to think about the next time the price of milk goes up. The average cow produces 285 pounds or about 137 quarts of milk a week, but it eats an average of 365 pounds of silage, 78 pounds of hay, and 94 pounds of grain, and drinks 161 gallons of water!

The Zion United Church Lutheran in Brodheads ville will hold its annual bazaar on July 11 and July 12. If you have donations, call Ruth Serfass at 992-4556.

School gets bids on roof, furniture

MATAMORAS — Several companies have submitted bids to the Delaware Valley School Board for the Matamoras elementary school and school furniture, but the bids will not be awarded until the July meeting, according to Assistant Superintendent Joseph Fotos.

Fotos said the bids must be reviewed by the school architect-engineers before a final decision is made.

Fotos said the board will also meet with members of the school authority in an effort to get $75,000 to finance construction of three tennis courts.

The authority has not officially released the money that was set aside as interest from the high school building project.

Beatrice Schneek, president of Concerned Parents for Quality Education, criticized any expenditures for tennis courts, noting that the money could be used to ease overcrowding in the high school.

The district received four bids for the tennis courts that ranged in price from $21,600 to $51,000.

Bids were received from R.M. Electric, Pliscott Electric, Simco and Keystone Pavement and Construction Co. The bid from Pliscott was rejected because it was "not complete and in the proper form", according to board solicitor Arthur Ridley.

Some of the companies also submitted alternate bids for an additional tennis court and wall.

Five companies bid on roofing for the Matamoras elementary school with a high bid of $23,350 and low bid of $10,406.

And ten companies bid on school furniture for the school district, while nine companies submitted bids for lumber and steel items used in the high school industrial arts program.

In other business, the board accepted the resignations of Mrs. Selma Springer, a teacher's aide; Gary Lees, physical education teacher; John Seidenstricker, physical education teacher; Miss Judith Homan, art teacher and Mrs. Elizabeth Klein, seventh grade teacher.

Governing board selected; Pike college opening soon

MATAMORAS — A community college service center has been officially approved for the Delaware Valley School District by a near unanimous vote of the school board.

The board also named a 12-member operating board comprised of local citizens, who will aid in determining the policies of the college center subject to the approval of Northampton County Area Community College (NCACC) board of directors.

Board member Vincent McEvoy was the only person to abstain from voting on the $45,000 project that will be administered by NCACC and financed through school district, state and student funds.

In the past, McEvoy supported a residents' group that asked for a public referendum on the proposed contract for the college center. Residents questioned whether a three year contract with a two year renewal option totaling about $132,000 would be too costly for the district.

McEvoy said he did not oppose the community college concept, but felt it required more study.

According to Kenneth Woodbury, dean of NCACC, the first meeting of the operating board will be held 8 p.m. Tuesday in the high school library.

The agenda will include the election of officers, determination of terms, and committee appointments.

Woodbury said board members will be appointed to committees that will consider personnel and curriculum and facilities and finance.

"The board will authorize the curriculum or programs, but not the specific courses," Woodbury explained.

It is expected the board will adopt programs that will lead to an associate degree in liberal arts, education, accounting, business administration and real estate sales.

A recommendation on a senior citizens' program at the college center and a policy arrangement for Pike County students who wish to attend colleges outside of the county, but still pay an in-county rate will also be discussed, Woodbury said.

Meetings of the operating board will be held every third Tuesday of the month and are open to the public.

Woodbury said until a director for the program is hired, he will serve as the interim director for the next few weeks.

"We are in the process of reviewing 11 applications for the position," he said.

Although a specific date has not been set, Woodbury said the community college will open at the Delaware Valley High School and Middle School sometime in September.

Civic groups, government lauded in Mount Pocono

Mount Pocono Bureau
MOUNT POCONO — "A person's life is measured by how well they serve their community, God, family, and country," Mount Pocono Mayor Joseph Battisto told borough officials and residents attending Flag Day Ceremonies, Saturday.

The ceremonies taking place at the War Memorial in front of the Borough Municipal Building served a double purpose. The re-dedication of the War Memorial, recently renovated by the Mount Pocono Rotary Club as part of its Beautification Project, and the presentation by the club of the Betsy Ross Colonial Flag to the borough.

Battisto spoke of the many services the Rotary Club, Boy and Girl Scouts, their leaders, other community organizations, and governing bodies of the borough have given to the community.

"It's fine to be a Monday morning quarterback," he said. "But it's more important how well we serve."

He noted that 27 years ago the War Memorial was first dedicated to those who had served our country. With the re-dedication Battisto said, "We should all re-dedicate ourselves to our community."

Boy Scouts from Troop 96 of Mount Pocono and Scoutmaster Ivan Roe stood honor guard for the raising of the American Flag and the Colonial Flag. Scout Wayne Gross read the June 14, 1777 proclamation of the Continental Congress which resolved that "the flag of the 13 United States be 13 stripes, alternate red and white, that the Union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new Constellation."

Scout Robby Latzo raised the flags, with Scouts Gary Westrack and William Beehler assisting. Other scouts participating in the ceremonies were: George Hendry, Eric Mailloux, Richard Warnke, Timmy Stiff, Dean Kresge, and Kevin Kresge.

John Latzanich, president of the Rotary Club gave the Welcoming Address and David Boyd, a summer intern at the Mount Pocono United Methodist Church gave the blessing.

Rte. 209: Still long way to go

The matter isn't final by a long shot, but those involved feel confident enough to predict that our Rte. 209 problems may be over in a couple of years or so.

The House appropriations subcommittee's action instructing the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to proceed with the relocation of 209 from Milford to Marshalls Creek has yet to negotiate the path through the full Appropriations Committee, Congress and the White House. Anywhere along the line, it can be sidetracked, most probably by pressure from environmentalists fearing the 209 go-ahead would be the foot in the door the Corps wants to begin work on the Tocks Island project.

It isn't. The language of the order specifically prohibits any work on the project other than the relocation of Rte. 209. Nonetheless, some objections can be expected from environmentalists to whom anything remotely connected with Tocks is anathema, whether or not it is a project designed to save lives. As a result, a court suit to halt the relocation project is entirely possible, should the 209 clearance get past the other obstacles in its path.

There is another problem involved here, too. The Corps' plan is to build a two-lane road with provision for four lanes if traffic warrants — but only to Marshalls Creek. That raises the specter of a high-speed highway with greater traffic potential emptying out onto an already dangerous section of 209, the section from Marshalls Creek to Interstate Rte. 80 in East Stroudsburg.

Here is where the state is to step in. The federal government will relocate only that portion of road involved with the national park area. There should be no problem, since Pennsylvania Department of Transportation Secretary Jacob Kassab has pledged to act on 209 once the federal government takes the incentive.

The U.S. has now done so — or shortly will, if Rep. Joseph McDade, R-10, is right in his optimism. The rest will be up to PennDOT and Kassab. With the chronic money shortage in PennDOT, it wouldn't surprise us if Kassab looks for some way to sidestep his pledge. We can only urge him not to do so, and encourage our state delegation to put on the pressure to see to it he does not.

If all this comes to pass, there is no one deserves the thanks more than Rep. McDade. He has taken this matter to heart from the very beginning, and it is the result of his massive efforts and all the congressional IOU's he has called in that has brought it all about.

McDade has gone far beyond the ordinary call of duty in pursuing action on Rte. 209. He is genuinely concerned about the highway's dangers. That he has gone to such lengths to do something about it is a credit to his concept of serving the public and to his prestige in the House. If the state now emulates congressman McDade, we will have a new, safer highway to replace 209 in a very few years.

Bunker Hill issue

By RAY PATTON

The 10-cent Battle of Bunker Hill commemorative in the Bicentennial theme will have first day sale June 17 at Charleston, Mass. This will be the left side of the painting by John Trumbull, entitled, "The Battle of Bunker Hill."

Many collectors have asked about what SASE means when stated by clubs and societies who advertise Cachet Covers, etc. This stands for "Self Addressed Stamped Envelope", which the writers ask you to enclose when answering their ads.

Another abbreviation (CTC) stands canceled to Order. These are stamps canceled by the post office without being used for postage. This is done by several countries in order to sell dealers and collectors both mint and used new issues.

The United Nations four stamps and two Souvenir sheets for their 30th anniversary will be released June 26. The New York issues will also have first day sale in San Francisco on the same day.

Club News

The Pocono Mountain Stamp Club held their closing out Sunday, June 8 at the Stroudmoor. The members enjoyed picnic activities from 9 in the morning till 6 at night with an excellent meal prepared by the chief chef Rudy Butsch. Club meetings are not held during the summer but will resume Sept. 16.

John Lindsay's chickens have come home to roost

"Anything can happen now that we've slid over the bridge," I thought; "anything at all." Thus to Nick Carraway in "The Great Gatsby," as he crosses the Queensboro Bridge into Manhattan, New York was the city of infinite possibility.

But during the past decade it has become the city of impossibility.

I remember asking Senator James Buckley of New York a couple of years ago whether he thought liberalism's golden boy John Lindsay had been forever destroyed politically by what he had done to New York City. No, Buckley answered, Lindsay had certainly been a disaster, but he had left behind him a number of ticking Domsday Machines; and, when these went off during the administration of his successor, the Lindsay years would look good by comparison.

The Domsday Machines are now going off, and Mayor Abe Beame, who can add and subtract, shows signs of understandable panic.

Threats of layoffs

When not blaming his predicament on Washington, Albany, the banks, and the Republicans, Beame has been issuing scary threats to lay off thousands of police and firemen unless the federal or state government provides funds to bail him out. The fact of the matter is, however, that the entire cost of the city's police and fire departments comes to less than the interest paid on the $13 billion municipal debt.

Though the media are not exactly putting it this way, New York City is a perfect example of tax-spend-borrow liberalism. The public sector has undergone metastasis. The number of city employees increased by 136,000 during the past decade, to the present total of 400,000 — though the overall population did not increase during the same period. Today, one out of every seven people in the total work force is a city employee.

As mayor, John Lindsay brought to new heights the old political ploy of creating useless patronage dispensing agencies — things like the Office of Apparel Industry Planning and the Department of Ports and Terminals. The city maintains bloated Veterans, Human Rights, and Collective Bargaining Agencies that duplicate similar state and federal organizations.

As everyone, including prospective welfare clients, is aware, New York City's benefits are among the highest in the nation — no, the world — and, naturally, the city is a mecca for welfare recipients who, of course, vote their interests by supporting liberal Democrats.

At present, one out of every eight city residents is on welfare, which consumes 29 per cent of the budget. "If New York were to pay for welfare and social services at the same rate as Los Angeles," observed Business Week recently, "the bill would come to $125 million instead of the actual $2 billion annually."

As mayor, Lindsay made a specialty of caving in before the demands of the powerful municipal labor unions. Policemen earn $23,000 counting benefits and are about to demand $30,000. The garbage collectors are catching up. The bills are beginning to come in for generous early retirement schemes negotiated by Lindsay. Some $6.5 billion of last year's budget of $11.6 billion went for municipal salaries and fringe benefits.

Another Lindsay legacy is the tuition-free open-admissions City University, which is now larger than the state universities of 43 states. Though this educational and fiscal monstrosity is an undoubted bonanza for the potent education lobby, it is not easy to understand why those who can afford to do so are not required to pay a reasonable tuition. Nor is it obvious why the taxpayers ought to subsidize subway riders who enjoy an artificially low fare.

In a recent editorial about what it understatedly calls "the city's imperiled solvency," the New York Times refers to "a decade of municipal profligacy." Well, the New York Times supported John Lindsay in each of his successful mayoral campaigns, and if he tries for the Senate next in an effort to do to the nation what he has done to New York, the Times will undoubtedly support him again.

Scott Fitzgerald's city of infinite possibility has become the city of Sartre's "No Exit." New York has 22 different municipal taxes. Total taxation, direct and indirect, can easily take half the income of a New York middle-income family. Since 1969, 12,000 businesses have left the city and 420,000 jobs have been eliminated in the private sector — the result of taxes, union extortion, and dangerous streets.

All of this was the predictable legacy of tax-spend-borrow liberal welfare government in New York City.

Bad medicine at Shiprock

Nicholas Von Hoffman

WASHINGTON — Valerie Koster and Sandra Kramer are AWOL from Kafka's Castle.

The two young registered nurses, employees of the Indian Health Service, have refused to report for duty at new posts in Arizona and Oklahoma, where they have been assigned by Caspar Weinbummer's (cq) Health, Education and Welfare government conglomerate. Instead, they're sitting in suburban Maryland trying to uphold a position of principle, a clear-cut violation of the Civil Service regs.

Nurse Koster displayed a poor attitude even before joining the Indian Health Service. Clark Mollenhoff of the Des Moines Register, who did all the reporting on this story and broke it, has found out that even while a student at the University of Illinois' School of Nursing, the 22-year-old Koster had been sly taking courses on Indian art and culture. She concealed this information so that the officials who hired her had no way of knowing that she never intended to give the Indian Health Service the loyalty and dedication it needs to avoid doing its work without inside harassment.

On being assigned to the Indian Health Service Hospital at Shiprock, N.M., last year, the two nurses discovered the outside of the place was strewn with garbage which attracted "packs of wild dogs" and "rodents." Within the nurses' residence were toilets "encrusted with black sludge," and in the hospital itself "the focus is on filling out forms, doing the least work with the least effort and just getting by . . . for example, a physician refused to examine a patient who had just fallen out of bed because he had been sleeping and was upset over being awakened."

Love that filth

The two malcontents immediately engaged in the first of a series of actions that were to get them fired for profanity, carelessness of dress and insufficient attention to duty. They complained to their superior — a certain Dr. Laverne Husen, the hospital director. "Did you ever think that Navajos might feel comfortable in filth?" Koster said he asked her, thereby indicating she had been paying insufficient attention in those classes on Indian art and culture.

The troublemakers then went another step up the line to the area director, and when that availed nothing they went public, writing to a number of Congressmen and the editor of the "Navajo Times." Always sensitive to the needs of their primitive aboriginal wards, the Service responded by cancelling Kramer's promotion to head pediatric nurse, and when Kramer filed a grievance both women were canned. It was their fault. The area director, Dr. Marlene Hafner, had warned them that the Supreme Court had ruled public complaining was grounds for sacking. Can't have any unconstitutional bellyaching for the good of the Service.

But the two had done their work well, stirring up previously happy, contented members of the medical staff. Calling the firings an "administrative frame-up," Dr. Frederick Townsend, head of Shiprock's out-patient clinic, passed around a petition of support for the two young subversives which 40 people signed. In a letter to the hospital's director, Dr. Townsend was yet more critical of the quality of patient care than Kramer and Koster: "There are . . . signs of overlooking substandard performance because one 'can't expect more from the uneducated Navajo.' Working conditions are poor with the whole place at times looking like a county hospital emergency room. A few nurses rushing between seriously ill patients and every nurse I know on the staff has made medication errors. It's a wonder we haven't killed someone."

Suppressed info

If they had, it would be more of a wonder if anybody on the outside found out about it. Pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act, Russell M. Roberts, HEW's Suppression of Information Officer, denied Koster and Kramer copies of the charges filed against them which resulted in their dismissal.

After a ruckus was raised by Edward Mezvinsky, Koster's Iowa Congressman, the firings were rescinded and the adverse information in their file folders was expunged or "filed on the left side of the folder . . . in accordance with Appendix A, Chapter 293 of the Federal Personnel Manual," a great victory we understand. In the meantime a team of doctors from the University of New Mexico inspected the place and wrote a report backing up the nurses. That, too, might be considered a great victory except that conditions at Shiprock have been known and complained about by members of Congress for some time. Yelling about them does no good. Nothing does.

The nurses are vindicated and reinstated, but for the betterment of Indian health they've been punished by being transferred to other stations. What else was HEW to do? If Koster and Kramer were returned to Shiprock, they would continue to cause trouble, which would only mean they would have to be fired again. It would be injurious to the morale, discipline and good order of the Service to improve conditions at the hospital. The Navajos wouldn't appreciate it, and it would constitute a standing invitation for other members of the medical staff to take courses in Indian art and culture.

What crackdown?

Is the much heralded crackdown on the oil depletion allowance in the 1975 tax law all it is ballyhooed to be?

"No, not by a long shot," says Eli J. Warach, a nationally respected specialist in this field. It has not knocked out one of the top tax-shelter opportunities for big-money taxpayers. It has not touched what most individual investors consider the single most valuable tax shelter: the "intangible drilling cost deduction." It has not closed other "escape hatches" which, says Warach, "are big enough to sail a supertanker through."

Sure, the "repeal" of the depletion allowance will scare away a lot of money which ordinarily would go into oil exploration. It was aimed at and it will squarely hit the bigger oil companies and companies with refineries or retail oil and gas outlets. But, when queried on the question of its harmful impact to "smaller" investors, Warach's lack of concern is provocative. Specifically:

— The "repeal" of the 22 per cent depletion allowance is really not a repeal at all. In 1975, for instance, you are entitled to the full 22 per cent depletion for up to 2,000 barrels of oil a day. That's 730,000 barrels of oil or a comparable amount of gas a year! "It should only happen to us," comments Warach with a wry grin. Using a $10 a barrel figure, you could come up with a gross of $7,300,000 from oil and gas in 1975 and not lose a dollar of depletion allowance.

Big pay-off

— The 2,000 barrel-a-day exemption applies to each investor — not to each property or each partnership. And that pays off in a big way, Warach emphasizes. Assume there are 10 equal investors in your oil and gas partnership, the partnership properties are producing 15,000 barrels of oil a day. Each partner is treated as getting 1,500 barrels a day — so there's no loss of the depletion allowance.

— The barrels-per-day exemption is phased down 200 barrels at a time over the next five years, until it reaches 1,000 barrels in 1980. That's where it stays and that's not at all bad. The 22 per cent figure remains in effect until 1981; then it drops to 20 per cent and phases down year by year to 15 per cent in 1984. And there it holds.

— Looking even closer at the attractive tax benefits in oil and gas investments — incentives deliberately designed to attract money for the high-risk search for oil and gas — the fundamental point is that the "intangible drilling cost deduction" is the tax break all astute investors look for at once. Generally speaking, this refers to materials and other costs that go into the drilling of a well. In other industries, such costs must be written off over a number of years, but in this instance you usually have the right to deduct these amounts in the year you put up the money.

— Then there is depreciation. Large chunks of the remaining costs of the well are for assets such as the derrick, tanks and the buildings. These can be written off through depreciation deductions. So now that much more of your income is free of tax.

Cost depletion untouched

Cost depletion wasn't touched by the '75 law. It is one way to compute the depletion deduction and with it, you recover a commensurate part of your cost for the reserves as the potential oil production of the well is used up. When you have recovered all your investment in the well, cost depletion comes to a halt.

— Now back to percentage depletion, which also allows you to recover the cost of the well. But it does much more, for it allows you to deduct (where applicable) 22 per cent of your gross income from the well. You can't use both percentage and cost depletion in one year. You must use either one or the other, and you must use the one that benefits you the most each year.

— There is an annual ceiling on the deduction for percentage depletion — with the deduction limited to one-half the taxable income from the well. Under the new law, depletion cannot exceed 65 per cent of your taxable income for the year.

But subject to these limitations, Warach explains, percentage depletion will continue to be a real winner for investors for years to come. That holds, of course, only if you're in an oil and gas investment which is successful and producing. Percentage depletion doesn't do a thing for you if you're running up a string of dry holes.

Publisher's Notebook

Record graduation

By ALAN GOULD Jr.

One of the advantages of a group operation such as the Ottaway Newspapers of which The Pocono Record is a member, is opportunity for employees.

Of course people change in any business for good and bad reasons but generally speaking the opportunities for advancement are greater in a large company. And in something like the Ottaway Group of 12 newspapers potential for promotion is even greater because there are jobs almost exactly like the one you're doing in Stroudsburg at the other 11 newspapers.

When holes appear, the individual publisher looks over the prospects within his own plant and if he finds no one eligible, he contacts headquarters at Campbell Hall, N.Y. and is in touch with any of the other 11 papers who might have the person he needs.

In recent years The Record has sent some awfully good people to better jobs at other Ottaway points — and received a few in exchange.

In a few weeks we lose another. Ed Thomas, who has been our day composing room foreman for over two years and before that was night foreman for eight years, has accepted a job as general composing room foreman for the Daily Item in Sunbury.

Sunbury had to go outside its own shop for a couple of reasons. The important one is that they are about to switch their system of setting type from the old hot metal machines to photo composition. Ed has ideal credentials.

When he joined us as an apprentice in 1960, The Record used hot metal. A half dozen years later, however, we were among the first in the state to switch to photo comp. Under the leadership of Jim Murphy, then our composing foreman and now our production director as well, Ed mastered the new system. In the next nine years he has absorbed other associated changes and now will get the chance to shepherd an even more updated system through at Sunbury.

The Daily Item is half again as big a newspaper as The Record so it's an obvious promotion for Ed. He'll find an old friend to greet him because on the first of this year Keith Edinger was promoted from here to Sunbury as assistant general manager.

In that same "deal" we acquired John DelSanto, our assistant general manager to replace Keith. John came from our Middletown, N.Y. newspaper.

Others we've drawn from the Ottaway "pool" include me, who was editor in Oneonta, N.Y. when asked to come here as assistant to publisher Phil Blake in 1966. In 1970 we got Ron Bouchard to be our No. 2 newsroom man from New Bedford, Mass. A year later he succeeded the ailing Jim Riley as editor.

We've sent even more the other way including Blake, who switched from here to Sunbury as publisher in 1970 and has since gone a further step to headquarters as a vice president.

Three years ago this fall Bob Widmer, our business manager, was moved up to publisher at Port Jervis and a year ago Bert Walter, our managing editor, was elevated to editor at Plattsburgh, N.Y. Most recently we lost Kathy Ryan, an enterprising young reporter, to headquarters as assistant to the chief of Ottaway News Service.

There have been other moves proving the point that ambition and ability can be rewarded more substantially in a group operation.

Naturally it works to the group's benefit too. When our best people have advanced as far as room will allow at their paper, we usually can find a way to move them to a larger paper or a more responsible job. This keeps them on our side toward even better Ottaway newspapers ahead.

Harrisburg highlights

Since late 1972, there have been efforts in the Pennsylvania legislature to create a state law imposing strong controls over construction in flood plains.

Supporters of this drive have argued that only controls of this type will have any significance in lessening the damage of future floods.

Legislation to bring about these controls was introduced late in the 1971-72 legislative term, and again in the 1973-74 session. But these bills were never enacted into law.

This session, however, it is beginning to look as if sponsors of the proposed Pennsylvania Flood Disaster Prevention Act will finally get their way and see the legislature put a flood plain construction statute on the books.

Last week, the state Senate approved the bill and, with only three dissenting votes, sent it along to the House of Representatives for consideration.

What will the proposal do if it becomes law? How will it affect state residents?

To begin with, it will require owners of flood plain properties to secure government permission before beginning any construction on floodlands.

It will also classify all buildings located in flood plains as "obstructions," and would require government consent before any landowner can build, remove, modify, abandon or destroy any flood plain "obstruction."

The legislation is intended to "protect property and people in the flood areas from damage to floodwaters and from materials carried by such floodwaters by regulating existing and proposed construction" in flood plains, according to language contained in the bill at the time it passed the Senate.

To accomplish this, the legislation would empower the state Department of Environmental Resources to develop standards "for the design, construction and maintenance of obstructions within each flood plain zone."

The DER would also be responsible for determining which obstructions will be "allowed as of right, prohibited or conditionally allowed" in flood plains.

According to the bill, people desiring to build in flood plains could do so, but only if their building proposals met state standards and only if they obtained a special flood area construction permit.

The legislation would also prohibit local governments from issuing construction permits to people planning to build in regulated flood plains unless these people had "first obtained the flood area permit required by this act."

The bill grants broad policing powers to the state, and would permit state officials to "enter any land in a flood area for the purpose of ascertaining the location and condition of structures or obstructions in flood areas."

These officials would also be empowered to inspect "any building or structure located in a flood area for the purpose of ascertaining the compliance or non-compliance with the flood proofing rules or regulations" adopted by the state.

HARRISBURG — Here is how area lawmakers voted on legislation before the House and Senate this week:

Sens. Frederick Hobbs, R-Schuylkill, and T. Newell Wood, R-Luzerne, voted for passage of a bill abolishing the requirement for municipal governments and local school boards to secure state approval of loans of $50,000 or more.

The Senate approved this bill 47-0.

In the House, a bill was passed, 188-1, to allow the state Game Commission to adopt rules and regulations for issuing special hunting permits.

Reps. Raphael Musto, D-Luzerne, Russell Kowalshyn, D-Northampton, and William Foster, R-Wayne, voted for the bill.

The House approved, 189-0, legislation increasing from $200 to $500 the amount of money a second class township may spend for maintenance of abandoned cemeteries.

Kowalshyn, Musto and Foster voted for passage.

Congressional roll call

OTTAWAY NEWS SERVICE
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — In key roll call votes last week, the House killed a proposed 23-cent a gallon tax on gasoline, during debate on the energy tax bill. The House also failed to override President Ford's veto of the strip mine bill.

The Senate confirmed the nomination of Stanley Hathaway to be secretary of interior and passed a compromise measure allowing junior senators to increase their staffs.

The House:

— A motion to override President Ford's veto of legislation to regulate strip mining, two-thirds majority required, failed 278-143.

Rep. Joseph M. McDade, R-10, yes; Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-15, yes.

— An amendment to the energy bill to strike a provision imposing a 20-cent a gallon tax on gasoline, adopted 345-72: McDade, yes; Rooney, no.

— "An amendment to strike an additional three cents a gallon gasoline tax designed to provide funds for energy research, adopted 209-187: McDade, yes; Rooney, no.

— An amendment to eliminate from the bill a provision to impose a 6 million barrel a day ceiling on oil imports, rejected 185-224: McDade, yes; Rooney, no.

— An amendment to strike from the bill a section giving the president the authority to purchase all foreign oil, adopted 216-196.

No welcome signs out for hordes of stinking fish

MUSKEGON, Mich. (UPI) — The alwives are back but there are no welcome signs. It isn't quite as bad as in 1967 when millions of the pesky, stinking fish piled up on Lake Michigan beaches and drove thousands of west Michigan resort fanciers to other vacation states.

But the current situation is bad enough to keep crews busy taking them away for burial and resort operators are keeping their fingers crossed.

Harry Selleck, the Muskegon State Park manager, said mechanical beach cleaners have been busy at state parks for more than a week, sweeping up the herring-type fish, but many still remain scattered and clumped along the shoreline.

"It's a real mess because the smell of dead fish is particularly bad and draws flies. It is a very disturbing thing to see at the beach," he said.

Chicago's Lake Michigan beaches bore the first assault by the invasion this year recently when at least 10 truckloads of the fish were washed ashore and carted away.

Thieu reduced to hermit's life

TAIPEI (UPI) — Former South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu lives like a hermit here, doing nothing, going nowhere and telling nobody his future plans.

The man blamed by some for the loss of South Vietnam to the Communists has been staying at a high walled villa in suburban Taipei since he secretly entered the country in late April aboard a U.S. Air Force plane.

According to one of his security guards, Thieu has left his residence no more than five times in the past 1½ months, including a visit to President Chiang Kai-shek's tomb.

He spends most of his time indoors or sitting in the garden, chatting with his brother, Nguyen Van Kieu, former ambassador to Taipei, or other relatives who fled to Taipei before Saigon's fall. Often he sits by himself, looking at the sky and appearing to be in meditation, the guard said.

One official Nationalist Chinese source said Thieu may leave for Europe soon, or he may choose to stay in Taiwan.

"He first gave us the impression that he would only stay here for a couple of weeks and then move on to join his children in Britain or Switzerland. It has been nearly seven weeks now and he is still here," he said.

"Frankly, we just don't know what he plans to do and he is not telling us."

Observers said Thieu probably fears for his life if he leaves Taiwan.

They noted that among the tens of thousands of South Vietnamese now living aboard, many may want to "punish" Thieu for "failing" their country. Still others may want the gold they think Thieu has brought out with him.

How much gold, if any, Thieu brought with him to Taiwan is not known even to the nationalist authorities.

Thieu's residence has been guarded 24 hours a day by security agents who follow him during his rare outings.

They are doing this on the strength of a remark made by Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, who said since Thieu was an anti-Communist leader forced to leave his country, "we therefore should treat him with sympathy and courtesy."

— An amendment to impose civil fines on automobile makers whose cars do not meet federal fuel efficiency standards, adopted 306-86: McDade, yes; Rooney, absent.

— An amendment to impose an excise tax on all automobiles which do not meet federal fuel efficiency standards, rejected 166-235: McDade, yes; Rooney, no.

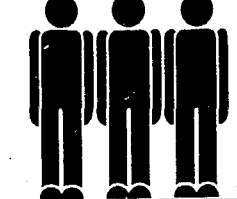

— A bill to provide supplemental appropriations for summer youth employment this summer, passed 408-8: McDade, yes; Rooney, yes.

The Senate:

— Confirmation of former Wyoming Governor Stanley Hathaway as secretary of the interior, passed, 60-36: Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., yes; Sen. Richard A. Schweiker, R-Pa., no.

— A bill providing approximately $8 million to add staff to senators with less seniority who currently have no assistance, rejected 47-49: Scott, yes; Schweiker, yes.

— A bill providing approximately $4 million to add staff for senators with less seniority, passed 63-35: Scott, yes; Schweiker, yes.

Annual festival of arts to be held in Wayne

HAWLEY — "June is Busting Our All Over," says the popular song, and Wayne County is busting out all over the rehearsals and preparations at various places for the different events in the 1975 Summer Festival of the Arts, sponsored by the Wayne County Creative Arts Council.

The Wayne Choralaires are rehearsing at the Central United Methodist Church social rooms for the annual concert on June 26, which kicks off the Festival.

The theme for this year's concert is "Yours and Mine in One Hundred Ninety Nine" and will take place on the steps of the Wayne County Courthouse. In case of rain or high wind, the group will perform in the Central United Methodist Church.

On June 30 variety night is scheduled to take place on the steps of the First Presbyterian Church facing Central Park. Featured will be the barber shop quartet, the "Professors Four," as well as the Maple City Band, under the direction of Robert Mains. Rain Date is set for July 1.

For a change of pace on July 7, Uncle Zeke emcees a toe tappin', foot stompin' jamboree on country and western night in the Central Park area. Rain date is set for July 8.

Again, a shift of gears as the council will present on July 9 a jazz night, also in front of the Presbyterian Church. Rain date is set for July 10th.

Topping off the festival for a grand finale will be a production of the Broadway Musical "1776," on the evenings of July 17, 18, and 19 at the Honesdale High School auditorium.

On those same days from 12 noon to 8:00 p.m. there will be an arts and crafts expo in the Honesdale High School gymnasium, cafeteria and adjacent halls. The theme of the expo is "Yesterday and Today."

Old fashioned thrift

Want to buy a cycle?

If your child is in dire need of a bicycle and you're looking for a really hot bargain... try a police auction.

Most city police departments hold auctions twice a year to dispose of confiscated or found property that is unclaimed. They sell everything from bikes to TV sets to furniture.

Not only can you find a bargain; you can have a great time. Auctions are a terrific place for people watching. — Katie Hess —

Bread crumbs

Make your own enriched bread crumb coating and save. Dry bread slices in 250 degrees oven until crisp but not brown. Put them in your blender on medium speed for a few seconds. Or, place pieces of bread in strong plastic bag or between pieces of wax paper and roll with a rolling pin. Store covered in dry place. To season, stir one cup dried bread crumbs with 1 tablespoon crushed oregano leaves, ½ teaspoon ground thyme, ½ teaspoon onion salt, ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon ground pepper. Makes about 1 cup.

Coleslaw favorites

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Today a Slim Gourmet's grand tour of coleslaw, featuring foreign favorites sans unneeded calories. We've adapted some of the most loved cabbage salads of other lands, omitting the extra pound-makers (like sugar, mayonnaise or huge quantities of oil). They suffer nothing in the translation.

Bagged shredded cabbage (or coleslaw mix) from the produce counter can make short work of coleslaw making.

- Dutch coleslaw
3 cups shredded cabbage
½ sweet red pepper, chopped
1 rib celery, chopped
½ onion, chopped
sprig of parsley, chopped
2 tablespoons plain yogurt
2 tablespoons diet (imitation) mayonnaise-type salad dressing
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons bacon-flavored bits
Combine everything except bacon bits. Chill. Add bacon bits at serving time. Serves six, 34 calories each.
- Polynesian pineapple slaw
3 cups shredded cabbage
¼ cup chopped red or green sweet pepper

- ¾ cup unsweetened crushed pineapple (including juice)
1 teaspoon salt
sugar substitute to equal 1 tablespoon
4 tablespoons vinegar
2 carrots, shredded
1 teaspoon salt
dash of Tabasco or pinch of hot pepper
Combine and chill. Serve six, 27 calories each.

- German red cabbage coleslaw
3 cups shredded red cabbage
3 red apples cubed (don't peel)
2 carrots, shredded or chopped brown or white sugar substitute to equal 3 tablespoons
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon salad oil
salt and pepper to taste
Combine all ingredients and chill. Serves eight, 59 calories each.

- Italian coleslaw
2 cups shredded cabbage
1 green pepper, chopped
1 red sweet pepper, chopped
1 clove garlic, chopped
2 tablespoons catsup
2 tablespoons low-calorie Italian salad dressing
salt and pepper to taste
Combine and chill. Serves six, 25 calories each.

By the time you are 27 years old your heart has ticked off its one billionth heart beat. Structurally, the heart is a muscle, the most powerful muscle in the body. It is the only one that works 24 hours a day. When we reach 80 years of age, our heart may have reached three (3) billion beats. That would be a daily rate of 103,680 beats every 24 hours. Sometimes the nerves leading to the heart become impinged and heart trouble is the result.

Chiropractic searches for and corrects dangerous nerve pressures that may cause heart disease.

Biggest gathering of its kind

Women gathering for conference

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The biggest global gathering of its kind begins here Thursday when the World Conference of the International Women's Year convenes, with possibly as many as 10,000 women attending the meetings.

Some of the world's best-known names will be among them, including two and maybe three chiefs of state; the wives of seven presidents or prime ministers; Fidel Castro's sister-in-law; and the Shah of Iran's sister, who is rumored to be the financial "angel" of the parley with a secret donation of $500,000.

Their presence automatically poses major security problems for Mexican authorities.

Others expected include U.S. political activists Angela Davis and Jane Fonda and "Women's Lib" personalities Betty Friedan and Gloria Steinem.

Mrs. Betty Ford had been expected to attend, but her appearance was increasingly "improbable," according to her press secretary in Washington.

Sponsored by the United Nations on a $1.7 million bankroll as the highlight of IWY, the stated aim of the two-week conference is to advance women's rights and equality with men in furthering world economic development and strengthening peace.

But there is general expectation that the meeting may stray away from the narrow theme of women's rights into another shrill confrontation between industrial and Third World nations over demands by the latter for a "new economic order."

The meeting is divided into two main segments — an official, government-level parley, which comprises the so-called "world conference" and an unofficial, non-government congress, billed as the "International Women's Year Tribune."

The two sessions will be meeting simultaneously but in different parts of the city through July 2.

Mexican Attorney General Pedro Ojeda Paullada, Mexican coordinator for the gathering, said there may be 2,500 delegates at the official session, which will be opened by U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim and addressed by Mexican President Luis Echeverria.

Like Mrs. Ford, Argentine President Maria Estela Peron had been expected to participate. Her presence, while not yet completely ruled out, seemed increasingly doubtful as of last Saturday.

Prime Minister S. D. Bandaranaike of Sri Lanka is a confirmed participant; so are the wives of the presidents of the Philippines and Egypt, Mrs. Imelda Marcos and Mrs. Ghina Sadat. Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi also confirmed she would take part but that was before an Indian court unexpectedly convicted her of election fraud.

Also slated to be on hand are the wives of five prime ministers, Mrs. Lea Rabin of Israel; Mrs. Begum Nusrat Bhutto of Pakistan; Mrs. Whitlam Gough of Australia; Mrs. Beverley Manley of Jamaica; and Mrs. J. M. Den Uyl of the Netherlands.

However, Mrs. Den Uyl, will be here in the unofficial capacity of news correspondent, Ojeda said.

Cuba is sending Vilma Espin, wife of Raul Castro, who is a brother of Fidel and chief of Cuba's armed forces.

Iran will be represented by Princess Ashraf Pahlavi, the Shah's sister.

In addition about 1,500 journalists, most of them females, are flocking into this capital, not only to cover the meetings but also to hold a separate forum of their own, known as "Journalists' Encounter."

There also is a separate "Seminar on Women in Development" programmed.

Consumers protest slipless credit card billing practice

By PATRICIA FANNING
Dow Jones-Ottaway News

Navy Capt. Marcus Zettel of Clifton, Va., puzzled over a recent credit-card statement; he could verify only half of the listed purchases. He could not recall some items dated two months earlier. And he could not tell whether he, his wife, or one of their six children had indeed signed for the goods.

The bank that issued the credit card, under a new policy, no longer sends copies of sales slips to back up each charge. Zettel, like many of the rest of us, had come to expect them with his bill, and his family had lost most of the originals. Irate, he complained to the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs.

Zettel's distress is the sort of thing that many theorize about, but he may not be typical of most credit users.

Bank credit cards, department stores, and local merchants are moving rapidly to slipless bills, a system known as descriptive billing.

And though the changeover is well under way, Zettel's is one of only a few complaints on file at consumer affairs. The Federal Trade Commission, the Senate Banking Committee, and several consumer groups have none.

Bankamericard, which has 29 million card holders in the United States, hopes to complete the switch to slipless bills by November. Currently, from 40 to 45 of Bankamericard's 88 regional processing centers use descriptive billing. Some have had it since their inception; Rocky Mountain Bankamericard Center in Denver, for example, has been sending slipless bills since 1967.

The Interbank Card Association which keeps track of some 34 million master charge accounts, predicts that 70 per cent of its member banks will be on descriptive billing by the end of the year.

Under the new system, many consumers may find it harder than ever to decipher monthly bills. Without copies of sales slips, it may be difficult to recall exactly what item you bought at the department store, or the hardware store, let alone whether the price is right. The identity crisis is likely to be compounded by bank cards that can be used for a variety of purposes over a wide geographic area.

Instead of sales slips, most bankcard systems provide a printed statement that lists either the date of the purchase or the date it cleared the customer's bank. Some list merchant, city, and state, but a few show only the merchant's name. Some Master Charge items say only "purchase." Apparently, none lists a street address.

Statements always show the amount of each charge but usually provide no description of goods or services. Each entry usually has a reference number, but it is rarely the number that appears on the original sales slip or the customers copy.

Because charges from so-called national accounts are not processed locally, transactions with airlines, oil companies, and hotel chains currently do not show locations. Occasionally the name and location of a parent company appear in place of a subsidiary with whom the customer dealt.

Like it or not, creditors contend descriptive billing is an economic necessity. Bankamericard alone expects to save from $14 to $17 million by November. The new system cuts the cost of postage and the personnel who used to gather up receipts and get them into envelopes.

Banks save most on out-of-town charges. Under the old system, sales slips were collected from merchants' deposits, mailed from one bank to another, handled again, and then mailed to the card holder.

Under descriptive billing, the slip goes no farther than the selling merchant's bank, where it is permanently filed. From there on, information about the sale is computerized and transmitted electronically.

If questions or disputes arise, card holders can request photostatic copies of certain receipts. Bankamericard officials say member banks apparently are honoring reasonable requests without charge. However, banks are not bound to send copies free.

Exactly what form descriptive bills will ultimately take depends on regulations now being written by the Federal Reserve Board.

In a law that goes into effect Oct. 28, Congress provided that monthly bills must contain "a brief identification" of each extension of credit in a form that will enable a customer to identify the transaction or relate it to copies of sales slips. The board's new rules will apply to local merchants as well as to the banks it regulates.

In California, Assemblyman Louis J. Panan has introduced a bill that would force banks to include sales slips. If descriptive billing prevails, he plans to press for consumer safeguards such as required description of items purchased, identification of the person who signed the draft, and a guarantee that copies of receipts would be available at no charge within seven days.

Wyckoff Shopper

It's true! You DO learn something new every day... like last Monday when I discovered that most PostMASTERS are LADIES!!! How do I KNOW? Because we had great time at Unity House where the Pennsylvania Postmasters were enjoying a delightful break from the usual doing out of the stamps that speed our mail across the land! That, among other things... for if you doubt that postmasters are "specialists"... try stepping into their shoes for five minutes! Like their compatriots... the MAILMEN... they are "always there"; and I feel we take their services a bit for granted! When you "meet and greet" them, you give it a second thought; and you fully appreciate their tireless efforts.

Betty Rine, the Postmaster in the charming post office at Henryville was our hostess, and it was she who invited Wyckoff's to be a vital part of the Monday activities that began on a most glamorous note with Suzann Durand, who literally flew in from New York for the Ultima II demonstration that was a real eye-opener at 10 in the morning. The ladies loved her; (who wouldn't!) and her "subject" was enchanted with her "new face," applied step by step by Suzann who IS an artist. She proved that each person CAN look very special... and that our staff in the cosmetic department has all the "know-how" to help YOU be a NEW you! She was assisted by Shirley Williams and ten lucky ladies were awarded bottles of Ultima II's Cerissa and Ciara perfume.

Following a delicious luncheon in the Sunlit Unity House dining room, the ladies convened in the superb Unity House Theatre for "It Was A Very Good Year For Fashion," with the super summer clothes being "stamped with approval" by the enthusiastic audience. Modeled by Cindy and Rosemary Levy, Jeanette Flagler and Vicki Zelenka, "show stoppers" were separates by Villager, and Queen Casuals; handsome Butte knit dresses; Cole of California patio pamamas and some of the prettiest summer party dresses this side of the local mail slot!! It was so good to see Mary Rhoades, Fred's pretty wife, looking prettier than ever... and to meet the Postmasters and the wives of Postmasters from all over the state!! Not a Ms. or a "Postmistress" among them... they're ALL proud to be postMASTERS and Wyckoff's were proud to have been a part of such a happy time!!

"Meanwhile back at the store" we've a happy time waiting for you with values galore... 'til nine tonight!! Come visit, won't you!! At Wyckoff's in Stroudsburg we're 100 years young and still going strong!

Things aren't going smoothly for public defenders

By WAYNE E. GREEN
Dow Jones-Ottaway News
 By order of the U.S. Supreme Court, most indigent criminal suspects are entitled to free legal counsel. But things haven't gone very smoothly for public defenders. Consider:
 — New York City and Washington, D.C., where many lawyers last year refused to defend indigents until disputes over legal fees were resolved.
 — Montgomery, Ala., where former jail inmate Jimmy Lee Tucker has accused state and local officials of ignoring the Supreme Court ruling.
 — Philadelphia, whose city government has won a court battle giving Mayor Frank Rizzo some say over who gets the top public-defender jobs.
 — Cleveland, where a Boston University study says the criminal courts operate "without a plan, without fiscal stability, without interest in defendants."
 In sum, there's mounting evidence of a wide gap between the constitutional right and the real-life availability of free, court-appointed lawyers for indigent defendants.

 MONROE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

While their plight has improved considerably since the first major right-to-counsel ruling in 1963, it's clear the Supreme Court's mandate still is being stymied in many places by recalcitrant judges, underfunded criminal defense systems, incompetent or overburdened lawyers, political haggling and differing interpretations of what the justices were demanding.
 The general picture is "appalling," James D. Fellers, president of the American Bar Association, said last month. He noted that "in some places, no counsel at all is provided to those who are rightfully entitled to it."
 And Sheldon Krantz, director of Boston University's Center for Criminal Justice, says those who are given counsel often get "a public defender who's simply overwhelmed or a private lawyer who's unwilling to devote the time."
 A defendant who goes to court with an ineffective lawyer or none at all plainly stands in greater danger of conviction — and a fine or jail sentence. If he insists on his right to counsel, his lawyer may be appointed only minutes before the trial begins and may know almost nothing about the case.
 Without an attorney, he may feel impelled to cooperate with judge and prosecutor and perhaps plead guilty to a reduced charge. And even if not actually denied the right to counsel, a defendant may give up that right in hopes of better and faster handling of his case.
 Some legal experts insist such problems are inherent in public-defender systems. As these organizations usually get their money from state or local governments, many experts feel they're too intertwined with the government family, a situation that "isn't conducive to adversary proceedings," Charles Tessmer, a criminal lawyer in Dallas, says.
 "Our criminal trials have become contests between two state agencies," Boston Judge Walter McLaughlin laments.
 Indeed, a study by Boston University's Center for Criminal Justice finds criminal suspects often view public defenders as "agents from the same mold as prosecutors, police and probation officers." One reason, it says, is that salaried public defenders don't take any money from clients, thereby creating suspicion that the defender owes his loyalty to the judge rather than to the defendant.
 But other lawyers say the defender system is far superior to the other option, in which judges simply appoint attorneys from the private bar to represent indigents. In cities like Philadelphia, where the public-defender staff includes some 90 lawyers and several investigators, the defendant may have a better chance of getting specialized help. "Our office is one of the largest in the country devoted exclusively to criminal law work," says Benjamin Lerner, the chief defender in Philadelphia. "We can provide our clients the kind of expert service that they can't get other places."

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Ex-Philly Eagles grid star Lee Bougess ended up behind bars — he's phys-ed director of Camden, N.J., County Jail ... The Times goes to two bits shortly ... Lynn Redgrave's next stage appearance will be as A Man: strawhatting the summer in "The Two of Us" ... Eddie Fisher's getting his eyes prettified before he plays the Concord next month ... Kay Thompson will try to animate "Eloise" into TV again ... Don't think ex-Mayor Jawn Lindsay didn't have a ball at the Cannes Film Festival ... Candy Bergen gets two movies back-to-back at Radio City Music Hall: "Bite the Bullet" and "The Wind and the Lion" ... She clicked more than $50,000 guarantee to her bank for the Polaroid TV snap-judgment.

Denmark's respectful citizenry couldn't keep a sacrilegious, cynical producer from filming an "erotic film about Jesus Christ"; watch out for lightning ... The engine crew in Kirk Douglas' "Posse" are real railroad union men — but were on camera so much they were forced to join the Screen Actors Guild ... Romy Schneider, divorcing stage director Harry Meyen, next will wed Italian Daniel Blasi, at 27, nine years her junior.

"Day of the Locust" director John Schlesinger concludes people dash to H'wood in a fantasy of orange juice flowing like an ocean, money, joy and sex, and "The money and joy aren't easy to find but the sex is." That should get him a thankee from the Calif. Chamber of Commerce ... Don't bet the Warner film, "Sparkle," isn't based on "The Supremes," who suffered a nasty contrast of success (Diana Ross) and failures among the rest of the first and subsequent members: It's about the dreams of three black-ghetto girls of the '50s; that's supremely parallel, wot?

Dorian Harewood, black actor in the one-night run of Arlene Francis' "Don't Call Back" flop, was good enough to win a Theater World Award: he couldn't accept personally because he's appearing on the West Coast so Bette Davis volunteered to accept in his place. Bette starred in the ill-fated musical, "Miss Moffat" (Bette was stricken in mid-trout), in which Harewood played the young student to her teacher in the musical based on the Welsh-inspired "The Corn Is Green." Bette said her major disappointment apart from illness was Harewood's missing the chance to have the critics see him — and make him an instant star ... Another winner in the 31st Theater World Awards was Linda Miller of "Black Picture Show"; she's the daughter of Jackie Gleason and estranged wife of playwright-actor Jason Miller (Linda also was a Tony-nominee).

Michael Ritchie's "Smile" film zapped teenaged beauty contests right in the promotions and his next — gad! is nothing sacred! — will do the ridiculing same to Little League baseball ... The jinx-gloom on the Leningrad set of the Liz Taylor-Jane Fonda-Cicely Tyson-Ava Gardner film expanded when a leading Bolshoi dancer broke his leg; but like Stalin's victims, they've got a million of them ... Co-star Cicely Tyson won't work if she can't get her exclusively-vegetable means; Jimmy Coco's out for good with gall bladder surgery looming; Liz Taylor's virtually commuting to a London clinic for her ailments; Ava Gardner's scaring the Russkis with her special genius for independence; and director George Cukor is tearing out the rest of his hair ... It's almost $15,000,000 in the fiscal red already ... Jane Fonda, who fled the "Bluebird" production, gets her militant dream next film around: Jerome Hellman, who produced "Day of the Locust," signed her for a returned-Vietnam veterans movie; no mystery to which side that will tilt.

Bdwy. actress Deborah Allen weds Win Wilford June 22 in Houston, Texas, and it's a pure showbiz scene: Deb's the in-genue lead in the Bdwy. musical smash, "The Wiz"; her to-be groom is a CBS Record publicist; and members of the wedding will include her sister Phylcia Allen also of "The Wiz" cast and brother Tex, who plays trumpet in the "Wiz" orchestra, formerly of the "Raisin" pit band ... Brian Garfield, who wrote "Death Wish" and "Hopscotch," will dedicate his next book "To Lionel Hampton, without whom this would not have been possible"; because as an aspiring jazz musician Brian auditioned for Hamp who listened and promptly banished him from sight and hearing ... Paul and Ida Bo-chicchio, who own the "Originals by Paul" hairpiece emporium at 42nd St. & Bdwy., keep up with all the modern hair-piece styles; but Paul also is gearing up for the Bicentennial with his "Wigs of the American Revolutionary Period 1776-1776," which covers a multitude of patriotic and subsequent militancy.

Pay TV snuck up on the public and now threatens to explode via Cable TV; it has so sizzling a future; it now even boasts a new program-listening magazine, "Cable TV World" ... When film costs went out of sight in the '60s, MGM scuttled plans to film "Tai-Pan," James Clavell's best-seller about the 1841 founding of Hong Kong; but Carl ("Guns of Navarone," "Bridge on the River Kwai," etc.) Foreman isn't frightened by a mere $12,000,000 budget, so he'll make it.

When Dinah Shore goes serious, something permanently dire is in the fire: she'll do a "law enforcement" show; maybe that means she'll just have some stars of crime shows on; we can't imagine Dinah taking off her relentlessly happy face ... There's a survey for anything: the latest allegedly insists more cops get injured on calls to settle husband-wife fights than any other on-duty calls ... That doesn't include fights at home.

Erma Bombeck

Fathers

When it first appeared, Erma Bombeck's special Father's Day column became an instant tradition. This year we again bow to popular demand by bringing Erma's unique tribute to fathers for publication on Father's Day.

When the good Lord was creating Fathers he started with a tall frame.

And a female angel nearby said, "What kind of Father is that? If you're going to make children so close to the ground, why have you put Fathers up so high? He won't be able to shoot marbles without kneeling, tuck a child in bed without bending, or even kiss a child without a lot of stooping."

And God smiled and said, "Yes, but if I make him child-size, who would children have to look up to?"

And when God made a Father's hands, they were large and sinewy.

And the angel shook her head sadly and said, "Do you know what you're doing? Large hands are clumsy. They can't manage diaper pins, small buttons, rubber bands on pony tails or even remove splinters caused by baseball bats."

And God smiled and said, "I know, but they're large enough to hold everything a small boy empties from his pockets at the end of a day ... yet small enough to cup a child's face in his hands."

And then God molded long, slim legs and broad shoulders.

And the angel nearby had a heart attack. "Boy, this is the end of the week, all right," she clucked. "Do you realize you just made a Father without a lap? How is he going to pull a child close to him without the kid falling between his legs?"

And God smiled and said, "A Mother needs a lap. A Father needs strong shoulders to pull a sled, balance a boy on a bicycle, or hold a sleepy head on the way home from the circus."

God was in the middle of creating two of the largest feet anyone had ever seen when the angel could contain herself no longer. "That's not fair. Do you honestly think those large boats are going to dig out of bed early in the morning when the baby cries? Or walk through a small birthday party without crushing at least three of the guests?"

And God smiled and said, "They'll work. You'll see. They'll support a small child who wants to ride a horse to Banbury Cross, or scare off mice at the summer cabin, or display shoes that will be a challenge to fill."

God worked throughout the night, giving the Father few words, but a firm, authoritative voice; eyes that saw everything, but remained calm and tolerant.

Finally, almost as an afterthought, he added — tears. Then he turned to the angel and said, "Now, are you satisfied that he can love as much as a Mother?"

The angel shutteth up.

- 2) No-Fault will pay all your wage losses, up to $1,000 per month, up to a maximum of $15,000.
- 3) If you die, No-Fault will pay your funeral expenses up to $1,500.
- 4) Replacement services (cost of hiring someone to perform services which you would perform yourself except for the accident) will be paid up to $25 per day for a total of one year on a No-Fault basis.
- 5) If you die, No-Fault will pay your survivors up to $5,000. Benefits required to be paid to you by law (such as Workmen's Compensation, Social Security or Government Health Insurance) will be deducted from these benefits. If you lost more than the benefits paid by your No-Fault Insurance, you will be entitled to make a claim against another driver for the difference between what you received and what you lost, just as you can under the present system.

Lottery drawing in Bangor

BANGOR — Monroe County residents and visitors to the Bangor Area Centennial Fete can have free grandstand seats to a weekly Pennsylvania "Double Dollars." The lottery drawing will be at Bangor Memorial Park Stadium, Wednesday morning, June 25.

The drawing ceremonies are scheduled to begin at 9:45 a.m., rain or shine. In addition, special lottery entertainment, including a "dry run" of the drawing, is scheduled for the same site on Tuesday evening, June 24, at 8:30 p.m.

Scheduled in the midst of Bangor's 10-day Centennial Fete (June 19-28), the June 25 lottery drawing is a gala extra attraction for thousands of area residents and former residents who will be partaking of elaborate daily programs. These include historical pageants; industrial exhibits, carnival attractions, Centennial balls, tug-of-wars and other sports competition, box picnics, antique car displays, and finally, a three-hour parade of historical floats and costumed marchers at 2 p.m. Saturday, June 28.

The Pennsylvania lottery drawing is a ritual utilizing a specially-built 55-foot trailer.

School ends June 19 at Delval

MATAMORAS — The last day of school in the Delaware Valley School District will be Thursday, June 19 instead of Friday, June 20 as originally scheduled.

School officials said the last day of school was changed because all of the snow days were used up. No school lunches will be served on the last day of school.

Dismissal times for each school in the district will be: first run at the high school and middle school, 10:30 a.m.; second run at the high school and middle school, 10:45 a.m.; Milford and Matamoras elementary schools, 11 a.m. and Shohola and Delaware township schools, 11:15 a.m.

If parents have any questions concerning the schedules, they should contact Thomas Monaghan at the central office — 296-6431.

Unemployment level increases after drop

STROUDSBURG — Claims for unemployment insurance benefits in the seven-county area of Northeastern Pennsylvania continues to be double the year-ago level.

After a small decline the preceding week, the total number of weekly claims for unemployment insurance in the region increased.

The increase was by 1,117 or 4.1 per cent. Last week, 28,371 claims were filed compared with 27,254 for the preceding week.

In Monroe County, claims filed increased from 1,582 to 1,746, or 10.4 per cent.

Pike County experienced a 42.1 per cent claim drop from 541 claims to 313.

In Wayne County, unemployment insurance claims dropped 47.4 per cent, from 736 to 387.

Under the nine-week, state-funded extended benefits program, claims increased by 12.7 per cent. Attorney Guy A. Sol-fanelli, district manager of the Bureau of Employment Security reported 2,677 claims were filed compared to 2,376 for the previous week.

A gain was also experienced under the 13-week federal supplemental benefits program. He said 2,557 claims were filed last week compared with 2,359 for the prior week, a gain of 198, or 8.4 per cent.

Benefits claims under the 26-week Special Unemployment Assistance program rose to 485 last week from 384 the preceding week, a gain of 26.3 per cent.

Our Deep and Sincere Appreciation to All Our Friends, Relatives, and Neighbors for Their Sympathy, Help and Kindness, Due to the Loss of Our Beloved Husband and Father.

Group nixes official ties to study S-burg schools

By JEFF WIDMER
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — A second group of Stroudsburg Area School District residents has decided to look at how their school taxes are spent.

The Community Advisory Committee was formed late last year to act as a liaison between district administrators and residents, but has declared its independence from school authorities and broadened its scope.

Obscure until two weeks ago, the committee attracted attention when its chairman suggested ways to trim the district's proposed 1975-76 budget.

Administrators appointed 18 residents to the committee to act as a clearing house for residents' problems among other purposes. There are 15 on the committee now.

But the committee Chairman Bruce Anderson of Stroud Township said members can do a better job and be more credible and organized if they operate independently of district administrators.

Presently, Stroudsburg elementary principal Thomas Santoro advises the committee. Anderson said the group plans to cut its ties with school officials Thursday when committee bylaws are adopted.

Although the group has criticized the Stroudsburg School Board for some of its proposed expenditures for next year, Anderson denied at a board meeting that the committee's budget investigation will be a "witch hunt."

Another citizens group, Persons Interested in Education, began monitoring district spending and policies after former Stroudsburg High School basketball coach Ed Branyan resigned because of alleged pressure from a school board member.

According to Alice Luongo, committee vice chairman and unsuccessful candidate for the Stroudsburg School Board in May, "Our job is to say (to administrators), 'Here is a problem. Are you aware it exists? Are you doing anything about it?'"

Anderson said since the committee meets only once a month, task forces will be set up to study the district's budget, curriculum, transportation and other items.

In its statement of purpose, the committee also stated it would help school officials develop policies, interpret those policies and school programs for citizens and "influence public attitude and opinions in support of programs to improve the school system."

If bylaws are adopted, the committee will be composed of at least two people from each district school where they have children, home-school association officials and community members without children.

Task force, park service to meet

Tocks group seeks to save resources

MILFORD — Members of the Four County Task Force on Tocks Island will meet with National Park Service officials in July to discuss ways of protecting natural resources in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area.

The task force, which opposes the Tocks Island Dam project, is comprised of commissioners and freeholders from Monroe, Pike and the New Jersey counties of Warren and Sussex.

Monroe County Commissioner Nancy Shukaitis, chairman of the task force, said members wrote to the National Park Service stating that "natural values in the area had to be preserved."

"On the New Jersey side, especially, there are life rights not being protected," she said.

Raymond Stem, Warren County freeholder, noted that policing of the national park area was inadequate.

He said there were problems involving illegal camp fires, garbage and limited sanitation facilities.

Mrs. Shukaitis said representatives from the National Park Service responded to the task force criticism and will meet with the group July 11.

Stem also informed task force members at a monthly meeting that he conducted a public hearing in May on the proposed Tocks Island Dam project.

As a member of New Jersey Governor Brendan Byrne's advisory council on Tock's Island, Stem said he scheduled the hearing to elicit public response on the issue.

"The only people who showed up were the people who opposed it," Stem said.

Stem said each of the 10 members of the advisory council will make a report to Byrne in July.

The advisory council, which is comprised of representatives from industry, government, business, labor and the public sector, will hold its last meeting July 25.

Civil service status for housing job

STROUDSBURG — Charles VanSciver's tenure in his job as executive director of the Monroe County Housing Authority will no longer be theoretically subject to the winds of political fortune.

A bill signed into law by Governor Milton J. Shapp June 2 places executive directors and assistant directors of all Pennsylvania Housing Authorities both Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Allegheny County under the state Civil Service.

"In many counties," VanSciver explained, "directors change as often as political administrations." This is not, however, the case in Monroe County, as witnessed by VanSciver's 18 years of service.

The job may not have been treated as a political plum in Monroe, but VanSciver stands to gain other benefits from the change in addition to job security.

He learned at a recent meeting of the Northeastern Pennsylvania Association of Housing Authorities that salary ranges are likely to be set up according to the size of the agency and the responsibilities of the job.

VanSciver feels such criteria could make him entitled to a raise. Broad coverage under state health insurance policies is another plus.

The director explained the legislation will eventually cover all Housing Authority personnel not eligible for membership in the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

"Within the next 12 months, the Civil Service Board will draw up job classifications and salary ranges," he said. Many details remain to be negotiated.

VanSciver said the move to include Housing Authority directors in the state Civil Service would "encourage professionalism."

Job applicants will have to take an examination and score competitively to qualify. Only workers with 10 years or more on the job will be exempt.

So VanSciver's long experience in public housing will exempt him from the Civil Service examination.

Twins' survival tied to science, mother and God

By DEBORAH ENYEART
Pocono Record Reporter
EAST STROUDSBURG — Never underestimate the power of a woman's touch.

Their mother's touch and constant presence may have been the turning point in the recovery of a pair of critically ill East Stroudsburg twins.

The twins, now seven months, were fighting for their lives last October at the Geisinger Medical Center in Danville in the intensive care unit, where touching is an important part of the recovery program.

Mary and Martha, daughters of the Rev. and Mrs. James Horton, 82 N. Green St., were born Oct. 31 after their mother was rushed to Geisinger from the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Mrs. Horton's physicians knew the children might have respiratory problems because they were two months premature so they decided to send her where the children could receive special care.

The Geisinger Medical Center began a retrieval service to bring high risk newborn babies to the center's intensive care unit in July.

The center has a specially equipped ambulance, a baby buggy, to transport the children and also send physicians and nurses with the unit.

Dr. Thomas Martin, director of the program, said the best way to transport a high risk baby is before it is born, as was done for the Horton girls.

Mary weighed 3.10 pounds and Martha weighed 3.13 pounds when they were born just an hour before their mother arrived at the medical center.

Mrs. Debbie Horton with twins Mary and Martha

Both children needed help breathing and were placed in the center's intensive care unit for high risk babies, a term for premature babies or acutely ill infants.

Mrs. Horton said a nurse watched each of her daughters constantly for several hours after they were born.

As the children progressed, they needed less constant watching, although Martha needed watching off and on during her corrective surgery, for excess fluid on her brain.

Part of the Geisinger program is to have the parents spend as much time as possible.

Martin said separating a high risk baby from his mother is a severe deprivation.

Mrs. Horton stayed with friends in Danville while her husband made the 190 mile round trip several times a week.

"It was up to our discretion how much time to spend there. They wanted us to spend as much time there as we could without wearing ourselves out," Mrs. Horton explained.

She said she talked to her daughters constantly, telling them things that had happened at home.

"I used to tell them that Mommy's here and ask them how they're doing and tell them Daddy would be here when he could. I just talked to them like a child who was old enough to understand," she recalled.

"I used to sing 'Jesus Loves Me' when I held and rocked them. I was just so thankful the Lord had spared them. No time is too early to tell them about the Lord," she continued.

Mrs. Horton said the children would respond and seemed to know her touch.

"I can't quite explain it, but they knew, they sensed it. It was a sense of knowing you're there," she said.

The twins were kept in the same compartment in a room that was divided into four units.

Mrs. Horton said the children also seemed to sense things about each other.

"Mary knew that Martha had complications, when they were draining fluid from her brain one or two times a day. It's hard to say, but she sensed something was wrong," Mrs. Horton said.

"They had an awareness of each other even when they couldn't see. Mary had a fear of something happening to her sister," she continued.

Mary came home after four weeks but Martha had to stay an extra two weeks.

Mrs. Horton said they didn't visit Martha during those two weeks but called frequently to check her progress.

She said they thought it was more important to stay home with Mary and help her become adjusted to her new surroundings.

Although the girls play and eat like any other seven-month-olds, they still have to return to the center periodically for progress checks.

The Hortons have to take their daughters back this week for a check and again in August. In three months Martha has to return for a check.

New Jersey swimmer drowns in Delaware

DELAWARE WATER GAP — A New Jersey youth drowned Friday while swimming in the Delaware River near Kittatinny Point.

Edward Syznanski, 17, North Arlington, N.J., was recovered from the river at 4:15 p.m. Saturday a short distance from where he was swimming, according to New Jersey state police at Blairstown.

He was taken to the Warren County Hospital in Phillipsburg where he was pronounced dead. Dr. Herman Smith, county assistant medical examiner said Syznanski drowned.

Syznanski was swimming with two friends off the point when he apparently became caught in an undertow and carried into midstream.

His friends attempted to help him but were unsuccessful.

The body was recovered by the state police underwater recovery unit, which was assisted by rangers from the National Park Service.

Special baby unit impractical for Monroe

EAST STROUDSBURG — The local hospital doesn't have a service for high risk babies similar to that at Geisinger Medical Center because it is medically and economically impractical.

The small number of patients who would need such specialized care in a year makes a special unit unfeasible, according to a spokesman at the General Hospital of Monroe County.

He made the statement after conversations with Dr. Sherwood Samet, hospital chief of obstetrics and gynecology, and Dr. Hans-Helmut Brehm, hospital chief of pediatrics.

Samet said he has only referred four or five mothers to the special unit at Geisinger since it opened last July while Brehm said he has referred five or six acutely ill infants.

Samet explained that the technology to care for such children has only been developed within the past four or five years and is now only available at larger centers.

He indicated it would be an unwise and unnecessary expense to duplicate the expensive equipment here for such a small patient load.

Brehm said another aspect of the problem is the need for specially trained doctors and nurses to man the facility continually.

At Geisinger either a pediatrician or neo-natologist is on duty in the unit on a 24-hour basis along with at least two specially trained nurses, Brehm explained.

The local hospital could not afford such a staff, which is necessary to provide care to an infant within seconds.

Both doctors said the hospital staff did the best it could for high risk babies before the Geisinger intensive care unit opened.

Referrals could also be made to the Hershey Medical Center and to Children's Hospital in Philadelphia.

The problem with referrals to these hospitals is providing special transportation to them.

Historical Society retraces Gen. Sullivan's march

By BOBBY WESTBROOK
STROUDSBURG — In three hours and in air-conditioned comfort, the summer pilgrimage of the Monroe County Historical Society retraced the route which required a week of grueling effort and almost a year of preparation for Gen. John Sullivan and his expeditionary forces.

Two buses carrying 78 historians Saturday followed as nearly as possible the old Sullivan Trail of June, 1779 over which 2,000 men, 2,500 horses with supply wagons and artillery had made their way.

Sullivan's Trail is the Poconos' closest link to the Revolutionary War. Dr. John Apple and Horace Walters provided the historical background on the buses and at the stops along the pilgrimage.

Although travel conditions and changes of 196 years separated the two expeditions, the time of the year and the terrain provided a common meeting ground. The mountains, although no longer a barrier, still exist and there is still standing water in what was The Great Swamp through which the soldiers had sloged, and the terrified refugees from the Wyoming Massacre of the year before had floundered.

The historical pilgrimage started in Stroudsburg, whose Fort Penn at Fifth and Main Sts. provided a haven for the refugees from the Wyoming Valley. On July 3, 1778, the combined forces of British, Tory and Iroquois Indians attacked Forty Fort in the Wyoming Valley, slaughtering the small defending force and farmers.

It was this brutal attack which led Congress to promote the Sullivan expedition, preceded by Army roadbuilders who came down from Port Jervis, N.Y., leaving their baggage at Fort Penn in the rainy spring of 1779, until they could set up their own camp at the foot of Big Pocono.

The historical pilgrimage made its first stop at Wind Gap, which was also the first overnight camp of the army on Friday, June 18, 1779. They had marched 12 miles from the assembly point in Easton, reaching Heller's Tavern in the early afternoon.

They had intended going further but the sight of the mountain ahead stopped them until the next day. The gap in the mountain, taken for granted today, seemed providential to the troops and by 9 a.m. on Saturday, June 19, the forces stopped at Brinker's Mill, Scioto, to have breakfast and take on supplies.

A special supply warehouse had been created at Jacob Brinker's Mill by Capt. Alexander Patterson of Fort Penn, and Luke Brodhead of Water Gap as storekeepers.

The tour buses also stopped at Brinker's Mill where Dr. Earl Robacker gave the history of the present structure, now the property of Hamilton Twp., the gift of Karl Hope.

The earlier Brinker's Mill had been built on McMichael's Creek between 1740 and 1760. The present mill was built by Barnet Penner in 1800.

All of the equipment, including the wooden pipes and giant mill stones, necessary to restore what was a complicated and sophisticated mill for its times to working order is included in the building. All that is necessary is the money, Robacker explained.

The Robacker home, opposite the mill, was an unscheduled port of call for the bus passengers before they set off again on Sullivan's Trail, following the winding township road on the back way to Tan-nersville by way of Neola and Reeders.

Rattlesnake dinner

At Learned's Tavern in Tan-nersville, the Sullivan Forces had camped on Saturday night, June 19, after a day's march of 16 miles. There, along the stream by what is now Coral Reef Hotel, they had cooked their supper including fried rattlesnakes they killed, and collected forage for the horses.

"We think we have a fuel problem," commented Apple. "Imagine finding fuel for 2,500 horses."

Learned's Tavern was the last glimpse of civilization for the troops. From there they took off on the new road constructed over what had been only a wilderness trail. It wasn't much of a road.

They traveled but five miles on Sunday, June 20, with wagons breaking and horses and artillery miring down in the rain-slicked mud. They made camp on White Oak Run which Gen. Sullivan named Chowder Camp because of the fish chowder made for supper from fish caught in the stream, now a mere trickle.

The men in their diaries had different names for the stream, calling it Rum Creek or Brandy Creek, perhaps for the unregimental supplies they had taken on at Learned's Tavern. A diary also describes "The largest stand of laurel I have ever seen" where laurel is now breaking into bloom.

One of the chaplains reported that even though it was Sunday, he was too tired to preach and the men too exhausted to listen, yet their hardest day's march lay ahead of them, a forced march of 21 miles.

On that day, Monday, June 21, Sullivan's forces passed but did not stop at Hungry Hill, the roadbuilder's camp from May 30 to June 6.

Revolutionary monument

The buses did stop since the Hungry Hill monument is the only Monroe County Monument to the Revolution. A granite marker in a stone walled enclosure, it was sponsored by the Monroe County Historical Society and erected by the county commissioners in 1943. It also marks the grave of an unidentified soldier of that early corps of Army engineers.

The monument, only a few yards from where the back road joins Route 940, near Blakeslee, still conveys a sense of isolation which the Sullivan forces faced.

Because of swamps and wilderness Sullivan's men could not find a suitable site for a camp until they reached what Sullivan named Camp Fatigue at Bear Creek. Some of the troops straggled into camp after midnight.

The next day they advanced five miles to camp at Bullock's abandoned log farmhouse with their final destination, Fort Wyoming on the banks of the Susquehanna, only 12 miles away.

The buses didn't even pause at the camp sites since vandals have removed the bronze plaques giving information and only blank granite markers remain. In Monroe County, a stolen bronze plaque has been replaced by a wooden one by the Monroe County Historical Society.

With Fort Wyoming only minutes away, the historical tour stopped for lunch on the hill above Wilkes-Barre. Afterward they visited the historical park on the site of the camp and its predecessors on the banks of the Susquehanna at Wilkes College.

Fort Wyoming was the base camp from which Gen. Sullivan conducted his forays up into New York state, destroying Indian crops and settlements and rendering them ineffective allies of the British.

The last stop on the tour was the site of the Wyoming Massacre on the opposite side of the river at Wyoming. An impressive monument, erected in 1843, a tall stone column, bears the names of soldiers slain there and those who escaped the massacre which followed their surrender to forces three times their numbers.

The return trip of the historical society by Rts. 81 and 80 was accomplished in short order.

A WASTE OF BREATH — Baltimore manager Earl Weaver complains about a disputed call against the Orioles' Tommy Davis to home plate umpire Nestor Chylak in Sunday's Baltimore-Minnesota game. Weaver not only lost the ninth inning argument, but his Orioles lost the game, 5-4. (UPI)

Pearson outduels Petty to win Motor State 400

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (UPI) — David Pearson grabbed the lead with 35 miles to go and held off Richard Petty Sunday to win the Motor State 400 after a four-hour rain delay.

It was the sixth win for Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., at the Michigan International Speedway and also the sixth victory in 11 tries for the Wood Brothers, who prepared his Mercury.

Petty, NASCAR's all-time driving king, lost the lead on the backstretch of the 182nd lap and his bid to retake the lead with 10 miles to go was squashed when he skidded coming out of the second turn and fell too far back.

His last-ditch effort to pass Pearson on the final turn before heading home also was spoiled when the rear end of his Dodge fishtailed.

Pearson took home $14,230, while Petty of Randelman, N.C., got $9,605 for his second-place finish.

A late morning rainstorm held up the start of the NASCAR race. After the two-mile oval had been dried off by crew trucks, the first 11 laps of the $97,005 race were run under caution to make sure it was safe for the 160 mile per hour speeds by the late-model stock cars.

Pre-race favorite Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., was penalized one lap for passing the pace car under a caution flag nearly halfway through the race and he never made it up, finishing in fourth place one lap behind.

Dave Marcis of Skyland, N.C., finished third but well back on the same lap while Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn., wound up fifth after he ran out of gas with about a mile to go and was pushed across the finish line.

"I don't think they have decided what specific line they are going to take. Otherwise, we would have already done it. There are several areas of approach," said Veeck from his home here.

He said the lawyers have been given a week to 10 days to draw up a suit against Hoffberger, who announced last week through General Manager Frank Cashen that negotiations with Veeck had been cut off.

Veeck said the negotiations were nearly complete after he made a $12 million bid for the team last November, but talks dragged on. He said he was disappointed and perplexed when he learned of Hoffberger's move.

The former baseball owner once was president of the Cleveland Indians, the Chicago White Sox and the St. Louis Browns.

Pocono Big League results

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mickey Carey and Glenn Fralley combined to drive in five runs Sunday to lead Stroudsburg to an 8-5 victory over Bushkill-East Stroudsburg in a Pocono Big League game.

Dave Beck provided the big offensive blow for the losers when he slammed a three-run homer in the seventh. Phil Price had a run-scoring triple for Stroudsburg.

In the second game, Tannersville edged Bushkill-East Stroudsburg, 4-3. Randy Seese hit a two-run homer for the losers.

Hunter's four-hit shutout keeps Yanks near Bosox

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thurman Munson's two run-scoring singles and the four-hit pitching of Catfish Hunter led the New York Yankees to a 3-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox Sunday before a bat day crowd of 53,562.

The Yankees scored in the third inning off loser Stan Bahnsen with two out when Rick Dempsey singled, Ron Blomberg walked and Munson singled to center. Munson's single in the fifth inning drove home Ron Blomberg, who had tripled.

The Yankees' final run came in the seventh when rookie Kerry Dineen, playing in his first major league game, singled, went to second on a sacrifice and scored on Blomberg's third hit of the day. Blomberg was making his first start since May 4. He had been out with a shoulder injury.

Hunter gave up only a first inning single to Jorge Orta, singles to Bill Melton in the fifth and eighth and a double by Carlos May in the ninth in raising his record to 9-6. He struck out six and walked two in pitching his 12th complete game in 16 starts.

Manager Chuck Tanner of the White Sox was ejected in the second inning for arguing a "foul homer" call.

Run-scoring singles by Frank White and Cookie Rojas got the Royals two runs back in the bottom of the eighth and John Mayberry's sacrifice fly scored Kansas City's final run in the ninth.

Twins, 5-4
BLOOMINGTON (UPI) — Eric Soderholm drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Ray Corbin scattered 11 hits Sunday to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 5-4 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

The Twins staked Corbin to a 4-0 lead after three innings, and he held on, walking one and striking out five.

The Twins picked Mike Torrez, 7-4, for three runs in the first. Jerry Terrell led off with a double and scored on Steve Braun's single. Larry Hise singled, sending Braun to third and stole second before Soderholm singled home Braun and Hise.

Soderholm's single knocked in Hise in the third, and Dan Ford hit a solo homer in the fourth to give Minnesota a 5-1 lead.

Baltimore got a run in the fourth when Al Bumbry singled, went to third on Lee May's double and scored on a groundout by Don Baylor.

Brewers gain split

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Gorman Thomas blasted a two-run homer and Jim Slaton and Tom Murphy combined on a seven-hitter to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-2 victory over the California Angels in the nightcap Sunday for a split of their doubleheader.

The Angels won the first game 8-7, scoring two runs in the 11th inning after Lee Stanton had driven in five earlier runs with a grand slam homer and a double.

Slaton, snapping a four-game losing streak and improving his record to 4-8, pitched shutout ball until he went in the ninth when he walked Dave Chalk and gave up a homer to Ellie Rodriguez. Murphy then took over and got the final two outs to record his 13th save.

Thomas' homer, his third of the season and second of the doubleheader, came in the fourth inning after a double by Charlie Moore and gave the Brewers a 3-0 lead.

Indians, 5-1

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians roughed-up former teammate Gaylord Perry for 10 hits, including a pair of doubles by Boog Powell, which led to three runs, and went on to defeat the Texas Rangers 5-1 Sunday night to snap a seven-game losing streak.

Dennis Eckersley, with ninth inning relief help from ex-Ranger Jackie Brown, gained his fourth victory without a loss. Eckersley allowed only six hits through 8 2-3 innings but was replaced by Brown after issuing his fourth walk with two out in the ninth. Brown, obtained in the trade for Perry, got the last out.

Seaver picks on Padres for tenth victory of season

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Tom Seaver tossed a three-hitter for his 10th victory and recorded his second consecutive shutout Sunday in pitching the New York Mets to a 6-0 triumph over the San Diego Padres.

The shutout was Seaver's 31st of his career and he extended his scoreless-inning string to 22. The Met right-hander, who has lost four games this season, now has a lifetime record of 16-1 against San Diego.

Brent Strom, recalled from Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League Thursday, took the loss, his first decision of the season. It was his first major league appearance since 1973.

The Mets got their first run in the seventh inning when Del Unser opened with a drag bunt single and John Stearns followed with a double to left. After Mike Phillips struck out, Seaver hit a routine grounder which shortstop Enzo Hernandez muffed for an error, permitting Unser to score.

San Diego threatened to get the run back in the bottom of the seventh when Gene Locklear opened with a double but was left at second as Seaver retired the next three batters.

The Mets scored five times in the ninth inning with a pair of Padres' errors and two wild pitches figuring in the scoring.

Phils, 4-3

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Greg Luzinski homered with one out in the eighth inning Sunday to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and Gene Garber his fifth win of the season.

Luzinski's 13th of the season handed third Dodger pitcher Mike Marshall his fifth defeat in seven decisions and capped a rally from an early 3-1 deficit. Garber won in relief of starter Tom Underwood, pitching three scoreless innings after Underwood had escaped a jam in the sixth by getting pinch-hitter Manny Mota to hit into a double play.

Expos sweep

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pepe Mangual started first inning rallies in both games in a 5-for-9 day and relievers Danny Warthen and Fred Scherman pitched out of late inning jams Sunday in extending the Montreal Expos' winning streak to five games with a 2-1 and 5-2 doubleheader sweep of the San Francisco Giants.

Mangual singled and scored in the first inning of the opener when the Expos got both of their runs and he singled and scored in the first inning of the nightcap in a two-run rally. Mangual had four hits in the nightcap including his fifth homer.

Warthen pitched out of an eighth inning jam in the first game to help Steve Renko to his second victory in six decisions while Scherman bailed out Dennis Blair in the seventh of the second game. Blair gained credit for his third victory compared to eight losses.

Pirates, 8-6

ATLANTA (UPI) — Dave Parker led off the eighth inning with a home run Sunday to give the Pittsburgh Pirates an 8-6 slugfest victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The Braves, down 6-2 after 4 1/2 innings, had tied the score in the seventh with a three-run rally highlighted by Dusty Baker's two-run homer. But Parker drove the ball over the centerfield fence for his ninth homer of the year to put the Pirates ahead 7-6 and Rennie Stennett added an insurance run by singling home Richie Hebner in the same inning.

Cubs, 4-3

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bill Bonham struck out 12 for a career high and teammate Bill Madlock drove in three runs with four hits Sunday to pace the Chicago Cubs to a 4-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in a regularly scheduled game which followed completion of a suspended contest.

The Reds won the suspended game 11-3 as Johnny Bench collected five straight hits and Tony Perez drove in four runs.

Bonham, who walked four, was relieved by Darold Knowles in the ninth as the Cubs scored their first win over Cincinnati in seven decisions.

Madlock collected 11 hits in 13 at bats in the three games to raise his average to a league-leading .360.

Astros, 8-7

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Cliff Johnson slammed a pinch hit grand slam homer over the center field wall in the ninth inning Sunday to give the Houston Astros an 8-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

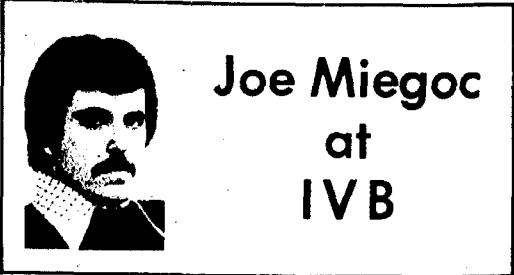

The Cards had scored three times in the eighth to take the lead but relievers Al Hrabosky and Mike Garman could not hold the Astros. Two errors and a single off Hrabosky loaded the bases with one out, then Johnson, who hit a three-run homer Saturday night against the Cards, greeted Garman with the grand slam.

Joe Miegoc at IVB

PHILADELPHIA — Two years ago, Tom Jenkins and Jim Barber, two of the professional golf tour's "rabbits", were leading the IVB Golf Classic after two rounds. Barber has long since returned to obscurity, but Jenkins has had rounds of 69-65 for a 134 total and a five shot lead over Jim Dent.

"If they had all the tournaments each year here at Whitemarsh, I'd be in great shape," said Jenkins with a smile after completing a round which saw him use just 26 putts, 15 of them on the front side. "I feel at home here — the putter always seems to roll well for me here."

It did just that Sunday. He birdied the second hole from 15 feet, the par-five fifth from two feet after a saving chip and then birdied the 11th and 13th holes to sandwich a saving par putt of 15 feet at the par-three 12th. He birdied 16 from 20 feet and 18 from 12 feet, giving him seven one-putt greens on the back nine.

"That's funny," he remarked, "because I'm having trouble with my putter this year." Jenkins has won $11,180 this year and $79,647 in three tour years. "But I am driving the ball straight," he added.

He missed fairways at the first, second and sixth holes on the front nine and on 14 and 15 on the back. But the longest putt he had all day came at 16, an uphill, 145-yard par-three. He drained that for his fifth of six birdies and has just one bogey in 36 holes here, that coming in the opening round on Saturday.

For a guy that has never won on the tour, a win would obviously bring relief. He wouldn't have to qualify Mondays, his tournament schedule could be aligned to give him rest periods and most simply it would take the pressure off him.

The money pressure is his heaviest concern right now. "I'm my own sponsor," he explained, "and if I can't make it out here alone I'll quit."

A third here, which would match his finish of a year ago, could bring in some needed cash. It would be his high water mark of the year, with a ninth at Doral his previous best. But a win means money and no more Mondays and that's enough for Tom Jenkins.

When rain washed out the starting round both Thursday and Friday, with some help from flooding Friday, there was mention of wholesale withdrawals as some of the bigger-name players might be looking toward the U.S. Open starting Thursday at Medinah, Ill. Did Johnny Miller think about leaving?

"I couldn't care less what they're doing out at Medinah," he replied after firing a 69 to go two-under and tie Hubie Green and Jim Simons for third after two rounds.

"I'd much rather be playing in the tournament here than be over there fiddling around," Miller added. "The competition does me more good than practice would." Tom Weiskopf, though, shot 75 Saturday and withdrew.

Miller's round was a strange one Sunday. He made birdies on 13, 14 and 17 as he played the back nine first and came back with an eagle on the par-five fifth and a birdie on six on his front nine, which completed his round.

Especially strange was the eagle, coming as it did right after he had double-bogied the tough 235-yard, par-three fourth. "I pulled a three-wood left into the wind there," Miller explained, "and I thought I hit a good chip back. I guess I was about six feet above the hole and the putt lipped the hole, picking up speed as it went by. Then I lipped it out coming back up." That made it a fat five.

But he made up for it on the fifth hole, screaming a drive over the dogleg right and smoking a six-iron 15 feet from the cup. He made it, then birdied six and just missed on seven and nine before settling for his 69.

There was some comic relief in his round, too. "My second shot on 18 landed in some seats in the bleachers," he said. "Some lady caught it. Ahhh, you have to take what you get."

Miller said he would be running with Jenkins if his putter was cooperating. "Jenkins has a good lead, but could blow it," Miller said. "It would be nice for him if he won, but there's a lot of golf left. If I were putting better, I'd be right with him."

The Tournament Players Division of the PGA Sunday decided to make the cut at the low 50 golfers and ties instead of the low 70 and ties to make the field smaller and easier to run around today if rain should bother the 36-hole finale.

"Players in the low 70s and ties, but eliminated in the cut, will receive equal shares of money and an exemption into the Western Open," said TPD spokesman Clyde Mangrum. The Western Open is the next tour stop following the Open.

Incidentally, for area fans who might want to head down, starting times for today's morning round range from 7 to 8:15 a.m., with the final round times ranging from noon to 1:15 p.m. The smaller field will be easier to get around in the event of a rain delay.

Andretti easily wins Formula 5000 race

MOSPORT, Ont. (UPI) — Mario Andretti dominated the Labatt's Blue Formula 5000 Championship race from start to finish Sunday to win $16,250.

Andretti's only opposition came from Englishman Brian Redman, who followed him all the way in an identical Vels Parnelli Lola T-332. They left the field far behind as they raced the hills and corners in close order.

"He kept me honest from the start," said Andretti of Nazareth. "It feels great now, but I don't much like the pressure during the race."

Andretti led the first race in the championship series at Pocono, but Redman won that event when Andretti dropped out with mechanical problems.

"I tried everything I knew this time," said Redman, "and I couldn't pass him."

Andretti averaged 116.4 miles an hour in capturing the 98.3-mile race, but Redman set the fastest lap, 1 minute 14.1 seconds for an average of 119.4 miles an hour.

Warwick Brown of Sydney, Australia, was third, more a lap behind in his Talon. David Hobbs of Upper Boddington, Eng., placed fourth in another Lola T-332, while Eppie Wietzes of Thornhill, Ont., finished fifth in a Lola T-400.

Jackie Oliver of Walton-On-Thames, England, second fastest in the qualifying behind Andretti Friday, was forced into the pits early in the race to change a tire, but fought back in his UOP-Shadow to finish sixth.

Redman leads the Formula 5000 championship series with 60 points. Andretti's 36 points for the Mosport win were his first of the year, but enough to give him second place in the series. The next race is July 13 at Watkins Glen, N.Y.

Al Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., second place finisher at Pocono, failed to start Sunday after his Lola T-400 blew its engine in a heat race. Redman and Andretti started their respective preliminary race.

Minor victory

STROUDSBURG — Dan Everdeen drove in eight runs with a grand slam homer, triple, and two singles to propel the Moose to a 16-12 Stroudsburg Minor League victory over Buck's Exxon.

Final two rounds scheduled for today

Jenkins grabs five-stroke IVB lead

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tom Jenkins, who has never led a round in three years on the pro tour, shot a six-under par 65 Sunday on a course he feels "at home on" to take a five-stroke advantage after the second round of the Philadelphia IVB Golf Classic.

Jenkins, a 27-year-old pro who supports himself on the tour, had a round of six birdies, and no bogies on the White-marsh Valley Country Club course for a 36-hole total of 134, eight-under par and five better than power hitter Jim Dent. Dent had a 67 for a 139 total.

One stroke back of Dent was Johnny Miller, No. 2 on the money-winning list, who had a 69 for a 140 total to tie with defending champion Hubert Green and Jim Simons.

At 141 were Buddy Allyn, Tom Shaw, Jerry McGee, Nate Starkes and J.C. Snead. Those at even-par 142 included Lou Graham, who led the opening round with a 65 but soared to a six-over 77.

Gary Player was at 144, two over par, while Tom Weiskopf, another big name here, withdrew after shooting an opening round of 77.

The 36 holes which began at 7 a.m. today were necessitated because rain and course flooding postponed Thursday's and Friday's rounds. And because of the threat of thundershowers today, the PGA made the 36-hole cut at the 50 low scores and ties.

The original field of some 150 golfers was cut at the 145 mark, three over par. Those who just made it included former Open champion Billy Casper, while Ray Floyd, last week's Kemper Open champion was among those eliminated with a 150.

Mann triumphs
MEDINA, Ohio (UPI) — Carol Mann, who feels that experience will prevail in pressure situations, proved that Sunday when she survived a double bogie on the 10th hole to card a 2-over-par 74 and win the $50,000 Lawson's LPGA tournament with a 54-hole total of one-over-par 217.

Veteran professional Judy Rankin, who has been on the tour since 1962, also had a 2-over-par 74 for a 54-hole total of 219, good for second place, two strokes behind Miss Mann. Miss Rankin was the leader after the first round.

Miss Mann, an easygoing and articulate veteran of 14 years on the professional tour, said Saturday when she was one stroke behind Jo Ann Washam, a non-winner since coming on the tour in 1973, that she felt experience would be the deciding factor in the final 18 holes on the 6,142-yard Weymouth Golf Club course here.

Miss Washam, who went into the final round two-under-par, skied to an 80 for a 54-hole total of 222.

Pele proves he's still number one

NEW YORK (UPI) — The pre-game plan called for Pele to play only 45 minutes Sunday, but he stayed on for the full 90 minutes and scored the final goal in a nationally televised soccer game which saw the New York Cosmos tie the Dallas Tornado 2-2.

After the game, the 34-year-old Brazilian, playing his first match since last October, said: "It was planned that I should only appear in the first half, but I felt so good out there, I decided to play the full game."

It was just as well that Pele decided to play the 90 minutes, for he had a very quiet opening half and the 21,278 fans, plus the national television audience and viewers in 10 overseas countries, would have been denied the chance of witnessing a typical Pele goal and some of his ball-handling skills.

"We need a few more games together, a chance to get to know each other before we can really start playing."

"But on today's performance I have no doubt we can become a very good team."

Kyle Rote Jr., the 1973 Superstars competition champion, said: "I have looked forward to playing on the same field as Pele, and today our sport emerged from the minor league status."

Phil Woosam, commissioner of the North American Soccer League, was delighted at Pele's performance. "This is what it's all about. He showed moves, both on and off the ball, which American audiences have never seen before. I am greatly encouraged and believe only good can come from his playing in our league."

Dallas goalie Ken Cooper, who denied the Cosmos a victory with a few superb saves, said of Pele's goal, "I never saw the ball. I did not have time to react."

A crowd of 21,278 was in Downing Stadium on Randall's Island to see the game, which was carried live to nine countries in Latin America and Japan on a hot, humid afternoon. The Cosmos have averaged just over 7,000 during their regular season games so far.

After a quiet beginning, Pele, for whom the Cosmos paid a record $4.7 million for a three-year contract, began to come into the game.

The horde of news photographers were treated to his victory salute—a right arm extended in the air in the 65th minute when he scored with a header following a corner kick taken by Israeli international Mordecai Shpigler.

The goal, the last of the game, tied up the score after the Tornado had taken a 2-0 halftime lead.

For the first 20 minutes, Pele did little except run around and shout orders to his teammates, who are drawn from seven countries. When the ball was passed near him, the Tornado defenders, particularly Albert Jackson and Bobby Moffat, were quick to double-team the Brazilian superstar. Twice they upended Pele.

But, in the second half, as he adjusted to the pace of the game, Pele—who has not played a competitive match since his final game for Santos of Sao Paulo last October—began to find the open spaces and spray passes which split the Dallas defense time and again.

Only superb goalkeeping by Ken Cooper prevented the Cosmos from scoring an outright victory.

Pele gave an indication of things to come in the 21st minute when, with little room to maneuver, he sent a header past the outstretched Cooper only to see the ball hit the right hand cross bar and bounce to safety.

The Tornado took the lead when David Shadwick collected a loose ball in his own half, raced three-quarters of the field and then centered the ball for Alty McKenzie to shoot past the advancing Sam Nusam in the Cosmos' goal.

The Cosmos then began to take control in midfield and were again denied in the 38th minute when John Kerr's 18-yard shot in the 39th minute hit the right hand crossbar.

Elizabeth defeats Snow, 3-2

STROUDSBURG — Ronnie Boehm headed in the game-winning goal Sunday as the German-American Sports Club of Elizabeth, N.J., handed the Pocono Snow a 3-2 defeat in an exhibition soccer match.

Boehm's goal came with about 20 minutes to play in the second half and sent the Snow down to its first home defeat ever.

Mario Kawczynski gave Elizabeth a 1-0 lead, but the Snow came back to tie the game when Manny Tavormina scored on an assist by Dusty Hoffman.

Mike Semels' goal put Elizabeth back into the lead, but George Kazakos converted a penalty kick seconds before the end of the first half to knot the score at 2-2.

The Snow will host Lancaster United next Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Tennis sign-ups scheduled

STROUDSBURG — Registration for elementary and high school tennis clinics will be held at 10 a.m. today at the Stroudsburg High School tennis courts.

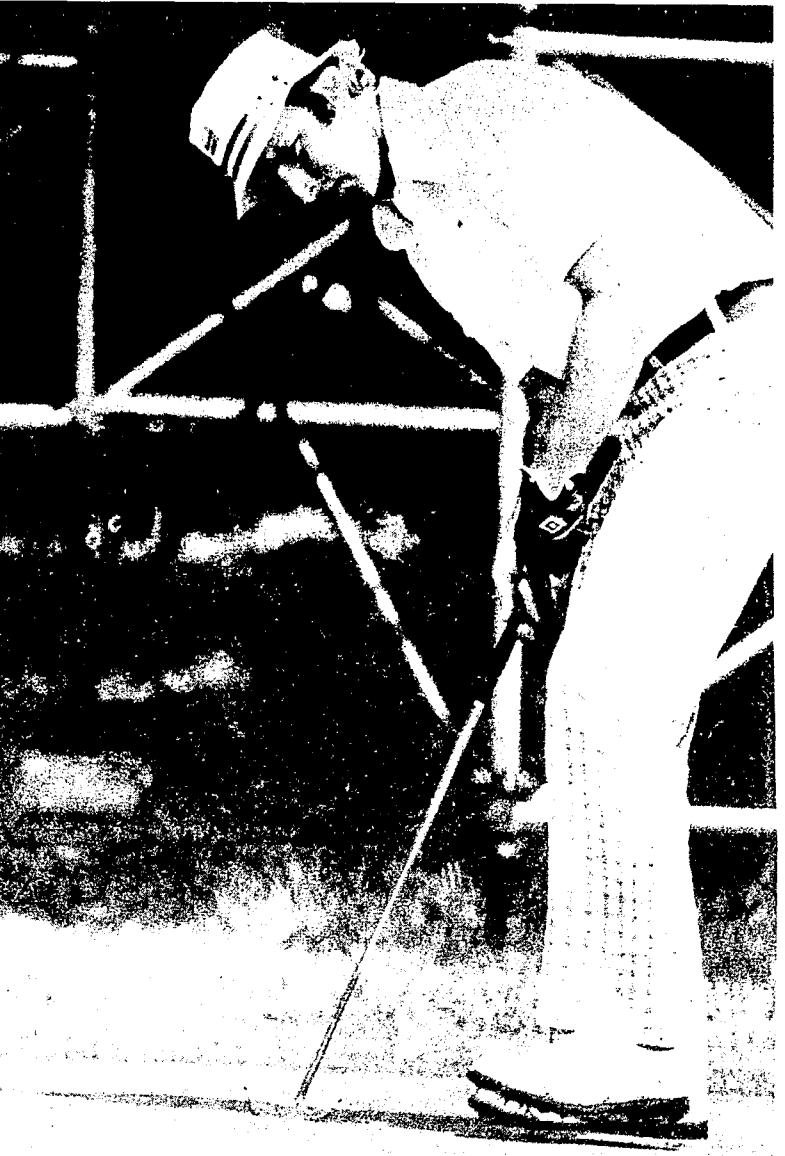

Times for the weekly clinics for all age groups will be announced.

Teams will also be chosen for the high school tennis league which will begin play this summer. All high school students are eligible to play and are not required to participate in the clinics to join the league.

Sign-ups will also be held for the Stroudsburg Area Tennis Club's men's singles tournament. The tournament, scheduled to begin play Monday, June 23, is open only to players joining the club.

Players must sign up at the court. No phone entries will be accepted.

A $1 registration fee and membership in the club is required. All matches will begin at 5:30 p.m.

IVB LEADER — Tom Jenkins sinks a birdie putt on the 18th green to cap a six-under-par round of 65 Sunday in the Philadelphia IVB Classic. Jenkins is eight-under-par with a 134 heading into today's final 36 holes. (UPI)

Vasquez will ride Ruffian

ELMONT, L.I. (UPI) — Jacinto Vasquez has made his choice, now it's LeRoy Jolley's turn.

Vasquez, the Panamanian jockey who's enjoyed incredible success during this Triple Crown season as the pilot aboard both undefeated Ruffian and Kentucky Derby winner Foolish Pleasure, has decided he will be on board the filly, Ruffian, in the 1 1/4-mile match race between the two slated for Sunday, July 6 at Belmont Park.

The only question now is: who will ride Foolish Pleasure? Jolley, Foolish Pleasure's trainer, is expected to make that decision sometime Sunday afternoon.

Frank Whiteley, Ruffian's trainer who has first call on the services of Vasquez, left the door open and let Vasquez make his own choice, but cautioned him that if he abandoned Ruffian for the match race, he would not ride her in next Saturday's $100,000 added Coaching Club American Oaks, the third leg of the filly triple crown.

Vasquez has ridden Ruffian in seven of her nine victories and Foolish Pleasure in 10 of his 14 lifetime starts, including the Kentucky Derby and the colt's three losses this year. He is the leading stakes winner in New York this year with seven victories.

Jolley was neither surprised nor embittered by Vasquez' choice.

"He's a good friend of mine," Jolley said. "Jacinto is a fine jockey, but under the circumstances I thought he would be called on to ride the filly. No matter what happens, you may be sure Jacinto may always have my horse."

The man considered most likely to be on board Foolish Pleasure is Braulio Baeza, another Panamanian jockey, who rode the John L. Greer colt to victory in last year's Hopeful Stakes while Vasquez was sitting out a stewards' suspension. The change will be only temporary, with Vasquez expected to have all future mounts.

Chuck Baltazar is the only other jockey ever to ride Foolish Pleasure, sitting aboard last year's 2-year-old colt champion in his first three lifetime wins. Vince Bracciale Jr. was the rider on Ruffian's two other victories, both in 1974.

Borg, Evert repeat as French net champions

PARIS (UPI) — Bjorn Borg of Sweden calmly repelled a come-from-behind bid Sunday by Guillermo Vilas of Argentina and won his second straight men's singles title in the $218,000 French Open Tennis championship, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

The 19-year-old Borg won $30,000 in victory and Vilas picked up $15,000 dollars in defeat at Roland Garros stadium just outside Paris.

The previous day, Chris

Evert had successfully defended her women's title, 2-6, 6-2, 6-1, against Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia. Miss Evert won $10,000 and Miss Navratilova half that much.

Mexico's Raul Ramirez and America's Brian Gottfried captured the men's doubles title and $7,500 between them by beating Australians John Alexander and Phil Dent, 6-4, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, Friday.

Miss Evert and Miss Navratilova trounced the Russian-American team of Olga Morozova and Julie Anthony, 6-3, 6-2, in the women's doubles championship match preceding the men's singles final.

In the mixed doubles final, following the Borg-Vilas match, Brazil's Thomas Koch teamed with Fiorella Bonicelli of Uruguay for a 6-4, 7-6 victory over Jaime Fillol of Chile and Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles.

"I'm a little bit surprised," Borg said after his victory. "I played really well. I think Guillermo was a little bit surprised, too, that I played so well today."

He added, "For sure I have seen Guillermo much better. Maybe he was a bit nervous. He missed so many easy balls."

The blond Swedish star took just 95 minutes to dispose of the hard-hitting lefthander from Argentina, getting his only real challenge in the third set.

Down 1-5, Vilas staved off a match point and held serve for 2-5, broke Borg for 3-5 and brought the near-capacity crowd in the 13,000-seat stadium to its feet by serving a love game for 4-5.

Borg jumped out to 40-0 lead on his service in the next game and Vilas rallied back to make it deuce, saving three match points. But the imperturbable Borg stroked a forehand winner and forced Vilas to hit a backhand wide for the match.

"I had 5-1 and match point and then I started to get a little tight," Borg said afterward. "It went to 5-3, then 5-4, because he started to come back. If he had broken my serve at that stage — if he had taken the third set — the match would have been open at two sets to one."

Borg said it was "difficult to play against such a close friend. I have to try to hate him on the court. That's the only thing I can do if I want to beat him. If I am kind and play like best friends, then I know he will beat me for sure."

Borg dashed through the first set in 25 minutes, with both players whacking hard topspin drives from backcourt, and Vilas making the key errors—a backhand into the net for a Borg break to 3-1, a double fault for another Borg break to 4-2, a forehand into the net to go behind 2-5 and a forehand long to give Borg the set.

The Swede got behind in the next set 1-3 before ripping through five straight games. Vilas seemed to be missing his first serve often and making unforced errors on his backhand.

In the third set the sun came out briefly for the first time in the match, which started under a light drizzle and went on for the most part under cool, cloudy skies.

The weather was in sharp contrast to the scorching conditions Saturday in which Borg gained the final by beating Adriano Panatta of Italy, 6-4, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, in his toughest and most spectacular match of the tournament.

Vilas advanced the same day with a 6-1, 6-4, 1-6, 6-1 win over Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach, Fla. The tenacious Dibbs succeeded in taking the first set Vilas was to lose in the tournament before his match with Borg.

Borg said of the third-seeded

Vilas, "His volleys for the moment are not that good. He was not confident with them." He added that Vilas "likes to play from the baseline like me."

The Swede said, "I felt it would go more than three sets. I thought it was going to be difficult for me, that maybe it would go four or five sets. I'm a bit surprised that it was over in three straight sets."

Traditional speed, accidents are absent

Bell-Ickx team wins Le Mans

LE MANS, France (UPI) — Derek Bell of Great Britain and teammate Jackie Ickx of Belgium drove a Gulf-Ford to victory Sunday in the timesteering Le Mans 24-hour race.

No speed records were set and no serious accidents occurred in this 43rd running of what used to be the world's premier sports car race.

Under new rules limiting refueling to once every 20 stops there was a premium on fuel conservation and a consequent cutting back of both speed and engine size.

Race promoters said the more modest dimensions of the race would bring it closer to ordinary drivers and attract more fans. But the crowd this year numbered only 200,000, by official estimate, or 150,000, according to the experienced crew of an advertising balloon — about half the crowds of the old days.

Britain's Bell was at the wheel of the blue fiberglass Gulf-Ford when it crossed the finish line after 336 laps—2,850 miles—at an average speed of 119 miles per hour.

Of the 54 cars that made the rolling start at 4 p.m. Saturday, 31 crossed the finish line 24 hours later.

Second came Jean-Louis Lafosse and Guy Chasseuil of France in a blue-and-white Ligier-Cosworth, which in the end stages provided the only real drama of the marathon, constantly gaining on the leaders.

At the finish they were only one lap back, for an average speed of 118 mph, and closing on the leaders, who were having transmission trouble.

About six laps behind the winners were teammates Vern Schuppan of Australia and Jean-Pierre Jaussaud of France, also in a blue Gulf-Ford, with a speed of 116 mph.

A Franco-Italian women's team which had finished sixth in the qualifying runs dropped out of the main race after only 20 laps with fuel tank trouble.

Each car had a team of two drivers and in some cases a reserve driver. Each driver relayed his teammate about every four hours.

The No. 10 Ford of Schuppan and Jaussaud took the lead within the first hour of the race but was soon overtaken by the No. 11 of Ickx and Bell, which thereupon maintained the lead for most of the race.

The Lafosse-Chasseuil Ligier moved up gradually from its 24th position of the first hour to seventh in the second hour and eventually to third place in the sixth hour.

From then on Lafosse-

Chasseuil engaged in a long struggle with the two Gulf-Fords, eventually distancing one of them and closing steadily on the other.

Winner Bell said, "The car had been having some transmission trouble and it was a matter of holding out to the end. I knew the Ligier was closing in rapidly."

Several drivers complained that because of the cutbacks in engine power caused by the fuel-conservation rule the long and exhausting race had too many inexperienced drivers.

"As the car is working beautifully," British driver Alain de Cadenet said before the race, referring to his Cadenet-Lola, "my main preoccupation will be to drive carefully and stay out of the way of those other drivers."

De Cadenet finished 15th out of 31. He was luckier than Francois Migault of France, whose Ligier Ford was rammed on a curve in the back stretch at dawn Sunday by American driver Harry Jones in a Ferrari-Daytona.

Ali toughens training habits

KUALA LUMPUR June 15 (UPI) — Muhammad Ali stepped up his preparation Sunday and admitted he was on the toughest training schedule of his career for his title defense against Joe Bugner July 1.

At a ringside news conference after his noon workout before 6,000 cheering fans at the National Stadium, Ali said he would hang on to the championship for five more years and then retire.

Turning around and sticking his tongue out at his wife Belinda, seated nearby, Ali cracked, "After that I am going to come to (Moslem) Malaysia and marry some more so I can have four wives like Islam allows."

Instead of his normal brief shadow-boxing routine, Ali boxed four three-minute rounds Sunday before sparring three rounds each with Jimmy Ellis and Levi Fortex.

Responding to reporters' questions, Ali said, "It is true I am running twice a day for the first time. In fact, I'm on the toughest training schedule of my career."

"That's because Bugner is young, he's fast, he's got a big reach and mainly because he is so confident," Ali said of the European champion, who is eight years younger than the 33-year-old world champion.

"No one can beat Ali at dancing in the ring. I'm the fastest ever but at my age that is difficult to do. The best way to build your speed is by running. I want to be able to dance for 10 rounds," Ali explained.

Ali agreed that Bugner, too, was fast with his fists and on his feet but added, "He's fast but he's got no power. I'm going to let him punch me at will for the first five rounds and after that he will be all tired out."

During his ringwork and the news conference Ali conducted the crowd in chants of "Ali, Ali." Jimmy Ellis, a onetime heavy-weight champion himself, went all-out during his sparring stint with Ali and the champion said later he wanted to get used to "having my brains rattled."

Trainer Angelo Dundee said Ali was down to 224 pounds from the 233 when he arrived and would try to keep between that figure and 220, which is his normal weight.

At one point, Ali said, "Muhammad Ali is going to keep the championship for another five years and then retire." On his arrival last Tuesday, he said after Bugner he wanted to beat Joe Frazier, George Foreman and Ken Norton before retiring.

Bugner, meanwhile, isolated himself from fans and newsmen as he got into a more serious phase of training. During a sparring session with Scandinavian champion Bjorn Rudi Sunday morning, Bugner lost his temper at one point and flailed the Norwegian until he stumbled to the ropes.

Trainer Andy Smith said Bugner needed to really relax during his rest days and would not like to be disturbed by fans or newsmen.

Cards cut Cater, Hahn

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals Sunday asked waivers on first baseman Danny Cater and outfielder Don Hahn for the purpose of giving them their unconditional releases.

The Cardinals recalled first baseman Doug Howard from their Tulsa farm club to fill one of the roster vacancies.

St. Louis obtained Cater, 35, from Boston in spring training in exchange for outfielder Danny Godby. Hahn, 26, was signed as a free agent on May 21.

Howard, 27, was obtained from California last September. He was hitting .336 at Tulsa when recalled by the Cardinals and will report to the big league club in Pittsburgh today.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Some unexpected changes indicated. Do not be dismayed. They should prove beneficial in the long run, so stress your adaptability, willingness to cooperate.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Activities speed up now — especially around noon. Particularly favored: creative enterprises, agricultural interests, community projects.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — This day should bring new zest into your life. Both personal and business matters governed by generous influences. Do make the most of it!

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Meet competition, but in a subtle manner. Advancement notable in science, economics, sales, educational pursuits.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Your ambitions can be given full rein now. Map route for the entire week along sound lines. You are in a position to make fine long-range plans.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Financial matters under some restrictions. Keep a tight grip on your wallet and curb tendencies toward extravagance.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Planetary influences now stimulate inspirational ideas, intuition, imagination. Inventors, architects, creative workers in general especially favored.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — You should have fairly clear sailing — especially ly in carefully organized ventures. Direct your innate aggressiveness toward worthwhile accomplishment.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — There will be tendencies to rush into visionary schemes, impulsiveness generally. Avoid! Put your guard up early, and KEEP it up!

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Fine influences! Enterprise, resourcefulness and initiative should spark the day and give you a brand new outlook on all activities.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Some unforeseen situations in business matters. Beware of instability, overemotionalism. Consult with others as to the best way of getting back on the beam.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Day calls for your best judgment. You may feel hesitant about some suggestions made, but look into them anyway. They COULD prove of value.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a highly receptive mind, a remarkable memory and unusual adaptability. Also extremely foresighted, you have a talent for guessing "what's coming" and being able to make changes in decisions and actions at a moment's notice. Your versatility is outstanding; also generosity, imagination, progressiveness and inventiveness.

Opening lead — four of spades.

Back in 1935, Ely and Jo Culbertson played a long challenge match against Hal and Dorothy Sims. Although it did not stir as much public interest as the famous Lenz-Culbertson encounter two years earlier, the match was followed with great interest by most of the faithful in the bridge world.

A giant of a man, Sims was one of the great card players of all time. He had an unerring instinct for good card play that combined his excellent technique with his dominating personality to produce the best possible result in virtually every hand.

But in this deal Sims met his match in the person of the brilliant but shy Jo Culbertson. She chose the four of spades as her opening lead.

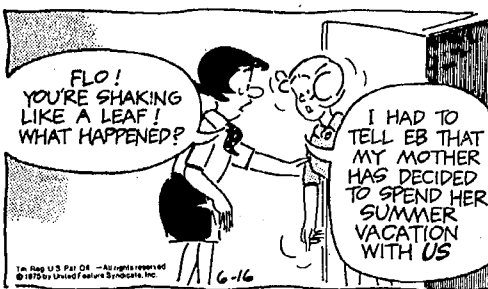

The underlead of aces against suit contracts is a practice severely frowned on in expert circles. But Mrs. Culbertson reasoned that Sims' unwillingness to play three notrump stemmed from his weakness in spades and that dummy was correspondingly marked with some spade strength by virtue of the three notrump bid.

So Jo, taking advantage of what seemed an ideal occasion, in view of the bidding, underled the ace of spades. After studying the situation at length, Sims played low from dummy, hoping Mrs. Culbertson had led low from either the ten or the queen. Ely won with the ten and returned a club to Mrs. Culbertson's ace. Jo now led the five of spades!

Sims glared at Jo for quite a while before finally deciding she wouldn't dare to underlead an ace twice against the grand master. Accordingly, he played the jack from dummy. Culbertson won with the queen, returned a spade, and a scarlet-faced Sims went down one.

Ann Landers

Rape advice

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed two letters in the last several weeks advising women on how best to protect themselves against rape. The last letter advised screaming, kicking, karate chops, etc. I hope you will print my letter which is based on information from an expert. He is Frederic Storaska, founder of the National Organization for the Prevention of Rape and Assault.

According to Mr. Storaska, a woman should never scream, struggle, run or try to kick the rapist where it counts. If she does, the rapist is likely to silence her by strangling her or cracking her skull open. Struggling excites him. What's more, very few women are good enough at self defense to throw a would-be rapist and make a run for safety. As for carrying a weapon, he says it would probably be in her purse — the first thing a woman drops when someone grabs her.

Pleading, according to Mr. Storaska, is the rapist's pornography. It would merely intensify his desire. If a victim denounced him and shrieked obscenities, it would only heighten his rage and he would become even more dangerous. (The rapist is, as you know, not a woman-lover, but a woman-hater. His actions are not based on the desire for sex, but his deep-seated irrational loathing of women.)

Mr. Storaska believes the best was to deal with a rapist is to turn him off by belching, scratching, vomiting — something that will divert him from the act. Mr. Storaska does suggest, however, that if a woman feels her life is in danger she should press her attacker's eyeballs into his head as hard as she can if she can reach them. This could blind or kill him.

While Mr. Storaska admits that reporting a rape to the police is a distasteful business, he says all women who have undergone the experience have a responsibility to society to report it in the hope that the rapist will be caught. Catching a rapist and convicting him, however, are not one and the same thing. About 65 per cent of all rapists who stand trial, according to this expert, are found "not guilty."

Age difference

By Jean Adams

EIGHT YEARS: (Q.) Would it be wrong for a 20-year-old young man to care for a 12-year-old girl? There is only an eight-year difference in our ages.

My father was 45 when he met my mother. She was 35. That is 10 years' difference and they are happy.

Very Interested in Louisiana

(A.) It is not "wrong" for you to like a 12-year-old girl. But neither is it practical or advisable for you to date her because she is not ready for love or other adult pursuits. It would be unfair to both of you to pretend that she is. Your mother and father met when both were adults so their age difference is not that disparate. You are an adult but the girl you have in mind is a child, and your age differences are worlds apart.

NEVER: (Q.) I'm 14 and I've never been on a date with a boy or kissed one. I've been asked to school dances and parties, but I can't go because my mother is old-fashioned and won't let me. I will be 15 in July and hope you can help me.

Crying in Massachusetts

(A.) Thousands of 14-year-old girls have not dated or kissed a boy, so you should not be in tears over that. But you and your mother do need to learn to talk to each other more openly about your life and hers.

If you and she could talk, you could understand each other's problems and needs much better. I suggest you write her a letter like the one you wrote me and give it to her. This might open the way to communications with her.

(Write to Jean Adams, care of The Pocono Record, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas, 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Jean Adams cannot send personal answers.)

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.
